INTRODUCTION

This project was started in the 1980s and was set aside for a period of time while I got up the courage to tackle German church records. I do not speak German, although I learned a little at my grandmother's knee. And, unfortunately, the German language in the time period I was dealing with was called "old German" and contained as much Latin as German. I spent time learning the bare bones of the German language and then tackled the translations only to quickly realize I was going to need help.

It was difficult to find someone who understood "old German" and was willing to aid me in my quest to translate it. I finally found a lady in California, Joan Gunn, who was a great help. Later, in correspondence over another subject I met Don Ubben, who is quite fluent in the German language and graciously offered to assist me. He was not only able to provide translations for the various records, he was also able to add insight into the various time periods and naming practices. I am deeply indebted to both of these individuals. I am also indebted to members of the Bartruff family including David and Maxine Bartruff, Robert James Bartruff and Blaine and Ines Whipple who so graciously shared their memories and family photos. The information they provided was invaluable in assembling a basis for my research.

Many resources were used to compile the data. Census records were used and it is important to note that there are numerous errors in the various census records. I have listed them as they were recorded and have not attempted to change the various discrepancies found. Military records, marriage records, death records and obituaries were also used to compile the data on the various families. The final information given on an individual is the best information I have been able to find based on all the records accessed. Every effort has been made to provide the most accurate information possible but I know there will be errors. It is also important to note, that many of the names changed from place to place. Most notably, names spelled with a "K" in Germany, (ie. Jakob) were eventually spelled with a "C" in many of the later records.

It will be noticed that many descendants are simply listed as LIVING. While I may have the information in my records I have made the controversial decision to not list information on anyone born after the 1940 census. Many will be upset to not have their family information listed, while others would have been upset to see their private information used in such a public format. With identity theft such an issue in these times I felt that it was in the general interest to preserve the privacy of those individuals still living. In some cases, with survivors being listed in obituaries, it may seem like a lost cause but unless I received specific instructions from an individual to use their information I have not strayed from my general rule of not listing information on anyone born after 1940. I picked this timeline based on the fact that the 1940 census is now a matter of public record.

It is important to note that the Martin Bartruff line is not connected to the Johannes Andreas Bartruff (1724-1795) that arrived in America from Germany September 23, 1752. His ship, the "Saint Andrew," captained by James Abercrombie, had sailed from Rotterdam to Plymouth, England and then to the port of Philadelphia. His significance to the state of Pennsylvania and that of his descendants is well documented. Any connection to his line would revolve around our first known ancestor, Martin Bartruff, who was born about 1721.

In addition to Johannes Andreas Bartruff there was a Frederick Bartruff who settled in Oregon in 1867 and established the Prairie Canyon Ranch in Douglas County. A search online will provide a look at this interesting landmark. At this time, I have not found a connection to our Bartruff lineage. Research on the connection will continue as time permits.

This project will probably never truly be complete but I have decided that the time has come to share what I have accumulated. It is my hope that it will be of interest and benefit to those seeking their Bartruff heritage.

As my research continues I welcome all additions, photos and corrections. They can be sent to SLFlora47@msn.com or mailed to Stephenie Flora, PO Box 18453, Salem, OR 97305

Prologue

Times in Germany in the 1800s were unsettled and had been for centuries. In hopes of starting a new life Frederick Ludwig and his brother, Jakob Konrad Bartruff, immigrated to America in 1852. They were followed soon after by their father who died a few years after his arrival. Their mother also died during the same period. It has not been determined if she remained in Germany with her other children or whether she attempted to immigrate as well. It is known that several of the other children immigrated in later years, including Gottlieb Bartruff. Attempts to track him beyond the 1880 census have been futile. Frederick and Jakob Bartruff settled briefly in New York before moving to Ohio. Frederick Bartruff later moved into Illinois where the majority of his family were born and raised. Jakob followed for a time but moved back to Ohio where he raised a large family.

Chapter I

History of Württemberg

To understand the present it is often necessary to understand the past. The Bartruff family was found in the Wuerttemberg area as early as 1725. For centuries Germany had experienced war and upheaval. In the following pages I have included a small history of the part of Germany that included Wuerttemberg. The information was abstracted from the Encyclopdia Britannica Eleventh Edition, a publication now in the public domain.

Coat of Arms of Württemberg

Württemberg refers to an area and a former state in Swabia, a region in south-western Germany. Its capital for the longest period by far was Stuttgart. For short periods of time, the seat of the government was located in Ludwigsburg and Urach. The name of the dynasty and the state originates from a steep Stuttgart hill, close to Stuttgart-Untertuerkheim.

Württemberg, once ruled by a series of Dukes, became a Kingdom during the reign of Frederick I, after the destruction of the Holy Roman Empire in 1806. In 1918 it was established as a Republic. The Federal Republic of Germany was composed in 1949 and in 1952 Württemberg merged with Baden to become the German Land (state) of Baden-Württemberg.

Today the total area of Baden-Württemberg encompasses 13,800 square miles with a present day population numbered at 10.7 million. It shares its borders with France, Switzerland, Rhineland Palatinate, Hesse and Bavaria. (Germany's land area, as a whole, is slightly smaller than the American state of Montana).

Climate:

The climate of Baden-Württemberg differs greatly among the various regions of the Land. The upper Rhine Valley is the warmest area, with a yearly mean average of 48°–50° F (9°–10° C), whereas the Alb is colder, with a mean average of about 40°–44° F

(4.5°–7° C). Here, and in parts of the Black Forest, there is a yearly average of two months of frost. As a rule, spring comes to the southern part of the upper Rhine Valley before April 20 but does not reach the highest regions of the Alb until after May 25. The latter region also has the highest amount of precipitation in the Land, because of the westerly winds that drive ocean cloud formations across France to discharge over the slopes of the Black Forest and the Alb. The annual rainfall in the upper Rhine Valley is 26 inches (650 mm), compared with 79 inches (2,000 mm) on the Feldberg, a favorite ski resort. The average precipitation in the Alb district is 40 inches (a little over 1,000 mm), but in the valley of the Neckar River and in the valley of the Tauber River, lying farther east, the amount of precipitation is often less than 24 inches (600 mm), and most of this is summer rain.

Agriculture:

The Kingdom of Württemberg essentially formed an agricultural state, and of its 4,821,760 acres, 44.9 % comprised agricultural land and gardens, 1.1% vineyards, 17.9% meadows and pastures, and 30.8% forest.

It possessed rich meadowlands, cornfields, orchards, gardens, and hills covered with vines. The chief agricultural products were oats, spelt, rye, wheat, barley, hops. To these add wine (mostly of excellent quality), peas and beans, maize, fruit, (chiefly cherries and apples), beets and tobacco, and garden and dairy produce. Württembergers reared considerable numbers of cattle, sheep and pigs; and paid great attention to the breeding of horses.

History:

The origin of the name Württemberg remains obscure. From serving as the name of a castle near the Stuttgart city district of Rothenberg it extended over the surrounding country, and as the lords of this district increased their possessions so the name covered an ever-widening area, until it reached its present denotation. Early forms of it include Wirtenberg, Wirtembenc and Wirtenberc. Wirtemberg was long current, and in the latter part of the 16th century Württemberg and Württemberg appeared. In 1806 Württemberg became the official spelling, though Wurtemberg also appears frequently and occurs sometimes in official documents and even on coins issued after that date.

Württemberg's first known inhabitants, the Celts, preceded the arrival of the Germanic Tribes referred to as Suebi. In the 1st century A.D. the Romans conquered the land and defended their position there by constructing a rampart. Early in the 3rd century the Alemanni drove the Romans beyond the Rhine and the Danube, but in their turn they succumbed to the Franks under Clovis, the decisive battle taking place in 496. For about four hundred years the district formed part of the Frankish empire, being administered by counts, but in the 9th century the German duchy of Swabia subsumed it. The following centuries were marked by wealth for the rulers and poverty for the population. Many wars and conflicts were fought to gain and maintain control of the region.

In 1688, 1703 and 1707 the French entered the duchy and inflicted brutalities and sufferings upon the inhabitants. The sparsely populated country afforded a welcome to fugitive persecuted Christians, the Waldenses, who did something to restore it to prosperity, but the extravagance of the ruling duke, anxious to provide for the expensive tastes of his mistress, Christiana Wilhelmina von Grävenitz, partly neutralized this benefit.

Charles Alexander, who became duke in 1733, had become a Roman Catholic while an officer in the Austrian service. His favorite adviser was the Jew Josef Süss Oppenheimer, and suspicions arose that master and servant were aiming at the suppression of the diet and the introduction of Roman Catholicism. However, the sudden death of Charles Alexander in March 1737 put an abrupt end to any such plans, and the regent, Charles Rudolph of Württemberg-Neuenstadt, had Oppenheimer hanged.

Charles Eugene (1728-1793), who came of age in 1744, appeared gifted, but vicious and extravagant, and he soon fell into the hands of unworthy favorites. He spent a great deal of money in building palaces at Stuttgart and elsewhere, and took the course, unpopular with his Protestant subjects, of fighting against Prussia during the Seven Years War of 1756 - 1763. His whole reign featured dissension between the ruler and the ruled, the duke's irregular and arbitrary methods of raising money arousing great discontent. The intervention of the emperor and even of foreign powers ensued, and in 1770 a formal arrangement removed some of the grievances of the people

When Frederick II became duke in 1797, Protestantism returned to the ducal household, and the royal house adhered to this faith thereafter. Frederick II (1754-1816), a prince who modeled himself on Frederick the Great, took part in the war against France in defiance of the wishes of his people, and when the French again invaded and devastated the country he retired to Erlangen, where he remained until after the conclusion of the peace of Lunéville on 9 February 1801. By a private treaty with France, signed in March 1802, he ceded his possessions on the left bank of the Rhine, receiving in return nine imperial towns, among them Reutlingen and Heilbronn, and some other territories, amounting altogether to about 850 square miles (2,200 km²) and containing about 124,000 inhabitants. He also accepted from Napoleon in 1803 the title of elector. The new districts were not incorporated with the duchy, but remained separate; they were known as "New Württemberg".

In 1805 Württemberg took up arms on the side of France, and by the Treaty of Pressburg in December 1805 the elector received as reward various Austrian possessions in Swabia and other lands in the neighborhood.

The Kingdom of Württemberg (1806–1918):

On January 1, 1806 Duke Frederick II assumed the title of king as King Frederick I, abrogated the constitution and united old and new Württemberg. Subsequently he placed the property of the church under the control of the state. In 1806 he joined the Confederation of the Rhine and received further additions of territory containing 160,000 inhabitants; a little later, by the peace of Vienna in October 1809, about 110,000 more persons came under his rule. In return for these favors Frederick joined Napoleon Bonaparte in his campaigns against Prussia, Austria and Russia, and of 16,000 of his subjects who marched to Moscow only a few hundred returned. Then, after the Battle of Leipzig (October 1813), King Frederick deserted the waning fortunes of the French emperor, and by a treaty made with Metternich at Fulda in November 1813 he secured the confirmation of his royal title and of his recent acquisitions of territory, while his troops marched with those of the allies into France. In 1815 the king joined the German Confederation, but the Congress of Vienna made no change in the extent of his lands. In the same year he laid before the representatives of his people the outline of a new constitution, but they rejected this, and in the midst of the commotion Frederick died on October 30, 1816.

At once the new king, William I took up the constitutional question and after much discussion granted a new constitution in September 1819. This constitution, with subsequent modifications, remained in force until 1918. A period of quietness now set in, and the condition of the kingdom, its education, its agriculture and its trade and manufactures, began to receive earnest attention, while by frugality, both in public and in private matters, King William I helped to repair the shattered finances of the country. But the desire for greater political freedom did not entirely fade away under the constitution of 1819, and after 1830 a certain amount of unrest occurred. This, however, soon passed away, while the inclusion of Württemberg in the German Zollverein and the construction of railways fostered trade.

The revolutionary movement of 1848 did not leave Württemberg untouched, although no actual violence took place within the kingdom. King William had to dismiss Johannes Schlayer and his other ministers, and to call to power men with more liberal ideas, the exponents of the idea of a united Germany. King William did proclaim a democratic constitution, but as soon as the movement had spent its force he dismissed the liberal ministers, and in October 1849 Schlayer and his associates returned to power. By interfering with popular electoral rights the king and his ministers succeeded in assembling a servile diet (legislative body) in 1851, and this surrendered all the privileges gained since 1848. In this way the authorities restored the constitution of 1819, and power passed into the hands of a bureaucracy. An agreement with the Roman Catholic Papacy proved almost the last act of William's long reign, but the diet repudiated the agreement, preferring to regulate relations between church and state in its own way.

In July 1864, Charles I succeeded his father William I as king and had almost at once to face considerable difficulties. In the duel between Austria and Prussia for supremacy in Germany, William I had consistently taken the Austrian side, and this policy was equally acceptable to the new king and his advisers. In 1866 Württemberg took up arms on behalf of Austria in the Austro-Prussian War, but three weeks after the Battle of Königgratz (3 July 1866) her troops suffered a comprehensive defeat and the country lay at the mercy of Prussia. The Prussians occupied the northern part of Württemberg and negotiated a peace in August 1866; by this Württemberg paid an indemnity of 8,000,000 gulden, but she at once concluded a secret offensive and defensive treaty with her conqueror. Württemberg was a party to the St Petersburg Declaration of 1868.

The end of the struggle against Prussia allowed a renewal of democratic agitation in Württemberg, but this had achieved no tangible results when the great war between France and Prussia broke out in 1870. Although the policy of Württemberg had continued antagonistic to Prussia, the kingdom shared in the national enthusiasm which swept over Germany, and its troops took a creditable part in the Battle of Worth and in other operations of the war. In 1871 Württemberg became a member of the new German Empire, but retained control of her own post office, telegraphs and railways. She had also certain special privileges with regard to taxation and the army, and for the next ten years Württemberg's policy enthusiastically supported the new order. Many important reforms, especially in the area of finance, ensued, but a proposal for a union of the railway system with that of the rest of Germany failed. After reductions in taxation in 1889, the reform of the constitution became the question of the hour. King Charles and his ministers wished to strengthen the conservative element in the chambers, but the laws of 1874, 1876 and 1879 only affected slight reforms pending a more thorough settlement. On October 6, 1891 King Charles died suddenly; his cousin William II succeeded and continued the policy of his predecessor.

Discussions on the reform of the constitution continued, and the election of 1895 memorably returned a powerful party of democrats. King William had no sons, nor had his only Protestant kinsman, Duke Nicholas; consequently the succession would ultimately pass to a Roman Catholic branch of the family, and this prospect raised certain difficulties about the relations between church and state. The heir to the throne in 1910 was the Roman Catholic Duke Albert.

Between 1900 and 1910 the political history of Württemberg centered round the settlement of the constitutional and the educational questions. The constitution underwent revision in 1906, and a settlement of the education difficulty occurred in 1909. In 1904 the railway system integrated with that of the rest of Germany.

Post-Royal Württemberg:

In the course of the revolutionary activities at the close of World War I in November 1918, King William II abdicated and a republican government ensued.

Württemberg became a state (Land) in the new Weimar Republic. After World War II in 1945, Württemberg was split between the newly founded states of Württemberg-Baden and Württemberg-Hohenzollern. Both of these finally became part of Baden-Württemberg in 1952.

Chapter 2

Winzerhausen

Winzerhausen is located halfway between Heilbronn and Ludwigsburg and is noted by the small circle. Oberstenfeld is to the right of Winzerhausen and was also the home of early Bartruffs.

Winzerhausen is still the home of many with the surname Bartruff. They may be descendants of the children who elected to remain in Germany. Winzerhausen is situated at the base of the Wunnenstein, a 1150' high mountain. The village was first named in 1247 as Winzilhausen. In former times there stood on top of the mountain, a small church, the Michaelskirche, with a cemetery. The local nobility became extinct in 1413, and at this time the castle was also destroyed. The church members moved in 1415 to the monastery Murrhardt, and in 1425 to nearby Oberstenfeld

In 1525, Winzilhausen, as mentioned above, was a gathering place of the Aufständischen, (Aufständischen translates to "rebels" and referred to local Christian peasants who were revolting against the ruler at the time). The Michaelskirche on the Wunnenstein was closed in 1563 on instruction of Duke Christophs, as it was no longer needed as a pilgrimage church after the reformation.

"Winzerhausen has about 1200 inhabitants and is incorporated to Großbottwar. The Bottwar is a small river running to the Murr which is a tributary of the river, Neckar. The slopes are covered with vineyards and the village is surrounded by cultivated lands." [Information provided in correspondence with Robert Anger, a resident of the area in 2007.]

The weather is moderate. July is warmest with an average temperature of 75.2 °F at noon. January is coldest with an average temperature of 28.04 °F at night. Winzerhausen has distinct cold and warm seasons, with cold winters and warm summers.

Winter has prolonged freezing periods, with the coldest month most often being January. July is on average the month with the most sunshine. Rainfall has no distinct peak month.

Winzerhausen has experienced earthquakes about every 50 years ranging 5-6 on the Richter scale. The damage has been slight but has been unsettling to the residents. Nestled in the valley, they received the runoff from the surrounding hills making their risk of flooding substantial.

Chapter 3

Lauffen on the Neckar

Lauffen as seen from Geigersberg Hill by A. Kniesel 2006

Lauffen on the Neckar river was the home of Fredericka Wilhelmina Spangler. She became the wife of Frederick Ludwig Bartruff around 1852 when they both immigrated to America.

Lauffen is located in the southern part of the district of Heilbronn, 9 kilometres south of Heilbronn and 50 kilometres north of the capital of Baden-Württemberg, Stuttgart, on the Neckar. The small river Zaber flows into the Neckar at this point. The neck of the previous great bow in the course of the north-flowing Neckar was broken through by erosion somewhere between 400 BC and 100 BC and for several centuries the watercourse survived as a ring of lakes. The old circular riverbed is now dry, apart from one small artificial lake. Along the old riverbed, a round hill was formed - its slopes now partially covered by the Kaywald forest and with other areas given over to the cultivation of vines. There is a hill on the western bank of the Neckar at the centre point of the ancient river bow. This hill became separated from another on the present eastern bank when the river broke through. Lauffen grew up on the western bank, on the ridge which is the site of today's Regiswindis Church. This hill settlement became known as Lauffen-Dorf (Lauffen village). In the middle of the river, between the two hills, is an island with a castle. This castle, originally the seat of the Earls of Lauffen, is now home to the town hall - the island itself is a nature reserve.

Town Hall of Lauffen by Felix Koenig

Another settlement, Lauffen-Stadt (Lauffen town), later established itself on the hill on the eastern bank. The two districts, Lauffen-Dorf and Lauffen-Stadt, are joined by a bridge. A smaller bridge from Lauffen-Stadt leads to the island and the town hall. Yet another district, the so-called Lauffen-Dörfle (Lauffen little village), grew up around a convent and is situated on the western bank to the north of Lauffen-Dorf and the Zaber. An exclave of Lauffen, the town's forest of Etzlenswenden, is located further east in the Löwenstein Mountains. It is presumed that this forested area was allocated to the town by its founders in around AD 1200, as there was no other forest within its boundaries from which timber and firewood could be obtained. It is here, in the exclave, that the highest point is situated – 452 m above sea level; the lowest point – 154 m above sea level is by the Neckar. The localities of Lauffen-Stadt (town) and Lauffen-Dorf (village) were combined on 1 April 1914 to create today's Lauffen am Neckar. The outlying farmsteads of the Landturm, an old customs house on the former Württemberg boundary, are included as part of the town. The defunct hamlets of Osterhofen and Talhofen originally lay within its bounds.

Over the decades repeated wars decimated the area. In 1810 the bridge over the Neckar was again renovated, the wooden elements being replaced by masonry. In 1817, the council bought the Neckar Island with the intention of using the site for a town hall. During the 19th century, emphasis was placed on agriculture. The lake of Lauffen was drained in 1820, thus producing 200 acres (0.8 km^2) of additional land. With the lake gone, the inhabitants lost a rich source of food but, on the other hand, the water had also been the cause of fevers.

Wine growing was improved by abandoning unprofitable varieties. The main variety became Pinot Blanc. The town planted more than 2,000 fruit trees within its boundaries and countless willows along the banks of the Neckar. Agriculture continued to increase in importance. From 2000 inhabitants in 1800, the population increased to approximately 4000 in 1850.

Chapter 4

Martin Bartruff

Generation I

Descendants of Martin Bartruff

MARTIN BARTRUFF was born Abt. 1725, and died Bef. 1781. He married SYLVIA CHRISTINA (maiden name unknown at this time)

Martin was listed as having resided in Obersteinfeld on his son, Johann's, family registry. While the old church records use the Obersteinfeld spelling, other sources list it as Oberstenfeld including the information provided by Wikipedia in the article that follows.

Child of MARTIN BARTRUFF and SYLVIA CHRISTINA (UNKNOWN):

I. JOHANN LUDWIG BARTRUFF was born 03 Feb 1747/48. He married DOROTHEA SEITER, 30 Oct 1781, Winzerhausen, Württemberg, Germany; born 29 Jun 1755 and died 29 Dec 1836.

"Oberstenfeld is located in the upper Bottwar river valley. It lays in the northeast of the district of Ludwigsburg. In the north it borders to the Löwensteiner Berge hills, in the west there are the hills Forstberg and Wunnenstein covered by vineyards. It is located 4.3km from Winzerhausen, where Johann Ludwig Bartruff is found in 1781.

Oberstenfeld originated in the seventh or eighth century, and belonged to the Lichtenberg castle residing above the town.

The Oberstenfeld nunnery was founded in 1016. Its patronage was taken over in 1357 when the count of Lichtenberg sold the town to the duke of Württemberg. In 1540 it adopted the reformation but remained a part of the Imperial Knights until 1803 when it was taken in by the duchy of Württemberg

Located on top of a hill, amidst idyllic vineyards, Oberstenfeld is guarded by the Lichtenberg castle. Photo was taken by Schemlze in 2009.

Peterskirche (St. Peter's Church)

The photo was taken by Mussklprozz in 2006

The Romanesque Peterskirche (St. Peter's church) is situated on a hill, about one kilometer north of downtown Oberstenfeld. Built in the mid 11th century, it is a relic of a lost precursor commune. The choir was arched over and the church's inside was painted with frescos in the 13th century. Some of those frescos are still present today. The church was nearly forgotten and unused for a long time. However, it is used for protestant and occasionally also for Roman Catholic services since it was restored between 1973 and 1976.

The Cyriakuskirche (Cyriakus' church), located in Gronau, is second eldest church of the municipality. Its choir tower is a relic of the Gothic first building phase which took place in the 13th and 14th century. It was rebuilt and extended in 1599.

The Stiftskirche (Collegiate church) St. Johannes der Täufer (St. John the Baptist), located downtown Oberstenfeld, is one of the state's most important Romanesque churches. The nave was built about 1220, the choir tower about 1230 CE. It is open to the public May to October on Sundays between 11 and 1 o'clock. Guided tours are available.

Nearby is the Dorfkirche (Community church), which was built in the 9th century as Galluskapelle (Gallus' chapel). It became the prayer room of the market town community in contradiction to the collegiate church which was reserved for the canonesses. After heavy damage in 1693 it was newly built in 1738. The porch in the north is decorated with the coat of arms of the municipality, which can also be found on the weather vane.

In the centre are a few restored baroque timbered framed houses. Among them are the town hall, built single-story in 1698 with two more stories attached in 1840; the timber framed house in the Großbottwerer Straße 14, built in 1700; the bakery which is the former de:Pfrundhaus built in 1702, originally used as dwelling for the canonesses; the winemaker's house (Winzerhaus) in Berggasse 2, built in 1737 and the cooper's house (Küferhaus) in the Küfergasse 15, built in 1726.

Chapter 5

Johann Ludwig Bartruff

Generation II

Descendants of Johann Ludwig Bartruff

JOHANN LUDWIG BARTRUFF was born on 03 Feb 1748. He married DOROTHEA SEITER on 30 Oct 1781, daughter of JOHAN JAKOB SEITER and ANNA MARIE BARTENBACH. She was born on 29 Jun 1755 and died on 29 Dec 1836 in Winzerhausen, Wuerttemberg, Germany. [The maiden name of Johann's wife is somewhat confusing on the various records. It appears to be listed as Seikern/Seikerin/Seikrin/Seiter and Suiter but in the final analysis it appears it was Seiter.]

By 1781 Johann Ludwig Bartruff is living in Winzerhausen. Primarily an agricultural area, a satellite map on Google Earth shows that it appears much the same today as it probably did during that time period.

Johann was a shoemaker according to the marriage records of his son, Johann. Other records state he was a wine grape grower. He was the father of nine children, at least four of which died young. Information on three of his daughters (Christina, Rosina and Maria) and one son (Johann) have not been found at this time. They may have moved out of the village as young adults and will be found in other parish records as my research continues. The church register states that Johann is the son of Martin Bartruff, of Obersteinfeld and Sylvia Christina (maiden name not listed).

During my research, it came to my attention that some of the christenings for the children of Johann Bartruff were witnessed by the Community Agent for the Poor. I questioned Joan Gunn, a teacher and translator for early German records, as to whether there was any significance to that fact. Her reply was: "Because the Community Agent overseeing Alms to the Poor is a very important and respected position, it is likely that this particular family was moderately well off. Sort of like having a judge or a mayor as a witness, the Poor manager is about third in status in the village, so would only be a witness for people, not necessarily wealthy, but more "upper crust".

Don Ubben, a translator who was of great assistance to me, noted that during this particular time period in Germany, families often used the name of their village in their name, usually in the middle name. Based on that practice there was some thought that the Ludwig in Johann's middle name may have significance with Ludwigsberg, which is about 85 miles NE of Winzerhausen.

Children of JOHANN BARTRUFF and DOROTHEA SEILER are:

- I. JOSEPH CONRAD BARTRUFF was born 12 Aug 1782, Winzerhausen, Württemberg, Germany. He died 19 Aug 1782, Winzerhausen, Württemberg, Germany.
- II. CHRISTINA REBECCA BARTRUFF was born 24 Jul 1783, Winzerhausen, Württemberg, Germany.

- V. INFANT SON BARTRUFF was born 13 May 1789, Winzerhausen, Württemberg, Germany. He died 13 May 1789, Winzerhausen, Württemberg, Germany. "an infant son-stillborn" On one Family Register it gives the birth and death date as 12 May 1789 but the 1787-1792 Family Register shows birth and death as 13 May 1789.
- VI. CHRISTIAN KONRAD BARTRUFF was born 06 Feb 1792, Winzerhausen, Württemberg, Germany and died Bet. 1860 - 1870, probably OH.

Variances in their names will be seen in further records.

Immigration Record for Christian Bartruff:

It is interesting to note that Christian immigrated to America in 1857. There is no mention of his wife accompanying him and it is noted that she died the end of 1858. Perhaps he was coming ahead to prepare for her later arrival. Although he shows up in the 1860 census it appears he probably died sometime prior to the 1870 census.

"The name of Winzerhausen, where your great grandfather was born, means in German "a place where inhabit vine-growers" – even now (www.grossbottwar.de/) It's between Stuttgart and Heilbronn. Generally they are not poor places. But, as my great grandfather, he left to avoid the partition of the property, maybe? [Best regards, Pierre Stabenbordt] “Katharine Fredericka Spengler and Frederick Ludwig Bartruff came to America from Wuerttemberg Germany about the year 1852.

Family Legend states:

It has not been determined whether Frederick and Katherine were married in Winzerhausen, aboard ship or upon arrival in New York City. Fredericka helped load coal on the ship to pay for her passage to America. Frederick emigrated to escape the draft into the Prussian Army. [This is probably an error. It appears more likely that they were looking for a better life after years of hard times and the new threat of having their property taken from them.] They came to New York and faced very hard times. They became rag pickers to live and Fredericka made and sold buttons out of bone for money. They struggled with the language.

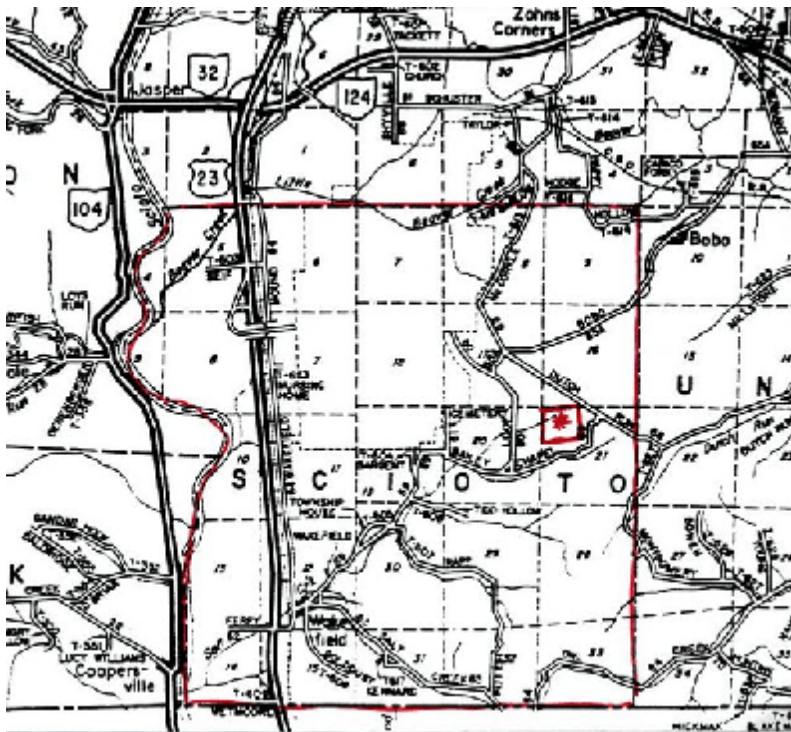

One child born in New York (Gotlieb) died in infancy. They spent several years in New York City before settling near Piketon in Pike Co, Ohio. They had a family of 12 children, two of which died in infancy.

Katherine had found work as a servant in a rich home but didn't dare tell them she was pregnant for fear of losing her job. Frederick, who had been a cobbler, eventually built up a good business. They made enough money to buy a small farm in Ohio.

During the Civil War, Frederick hid in a cave on the farm to avoid conscription. The oldest daughter, Katherine Eva, remembered carrying food to him when she was about four years old.

In 1869 they came by flat boat down the Ohio River to Cairo, IL and were met by a neighbor with an ox cart and taken to Jonesboro, IL.“ [Biography passed down in family from previous generations]

Interview with Margaret Bartruff Bunch

The following interview with Margaret Bartruff Bunch was done in February 25, 1981 by Blaine Whipple. Margaret was 88 on May 12, 1981,

"Charles John Bartruff Family--Charles John Bartruff and Mary Elizabeth Loeb moved from Jonesboro, Illinois to an 88-acre farm approximately 6 miles northeast of Salem, Oregon in the fall of 1898. The farm is located on Silverton Road and eventually became Route 7, Salem. Margaret was the first of their 10 children born in Oregon. The family moved to Oregon after Mary Elizabeth's bachelor brother, Robert Loeb, returned to Illinois from a trip to Oregon and told the Bartruffs what a great country Oregon was.

Charles, who owned and operated a general merchandise store selling dry goods, groceries and hardware, sold his store, made arrangements through a land agent to buy the Salem farm and moved the family to Oregon. The trip was made by train with the family furniture and other possessions loaded in a box car and moving right with the family. The new home in Salem was an 88-acre farm mostly cleared; although there was a small stand of Douglas fir, a prune orchard and apple, cherry and pear trees. The existing home was a 2-story farm house with 2-bedrooms and an attic upstairs; living room, dining room, 2-bedrooms, kitchen and pantry down. It had a front and back porch. Outbuildings included a horse barn, cow barn and chicken coop.

The family raised wheat, oats, hay and prunes. Later, 68 adjoining acres were acquired--some of it heavily timbered with first growth fir--as well as some dairy cattle. Eventually, a milk route was established on Silverton Road and the Bartruffs bought a separator and sold cream. The dairy operation, which included 8-10 cows most of the time, was the responsibility of Elmer and Margaret. The two of them developed singing voices during milking time. Margaret doesn't know how the cows liked the singing, but the two of them eventually got good enough to be invited to sing at school and church functions. Margaret says her voice was 'so-so soprano' but that Elmer had a beautiful baritone voice.

Charles worried about the farm taxes but the money from the prune orchard was always enough to pay them. 'How we kids hated to pick prunes,' she recalled. During harvest time, Charles hired extra hands. Some slept in the bunkhouse near the timber on the same acreage; some slept in the attic in their home. A neighbor with a binder was hired to cut the grain. Fruit from the apple, cherry and pear trees was sold to commercial packers in town. With his large stand of fir, Charles hired cutters in the fall and sold large quantities of cord wood, primarily to large commercial accounts in town.

Margaret recalls that her father was a thrifty businessman and hated to see anything go to waste. We kids never got allowances, she remembers. Whenever we wanted money for Christmas and birthday presents or some other special event, we had to ask Dad. I hated to ask him because he hated to part with it. We usually picked hops for spending money.

When the Bartruffs first moved onto the farm, they had one team of draft horses and a driving horse for the buckboard. Later, as they farmed more, they got a second draft team.

The house was furnished with things brought from Illinois, except for the stoves. There was a wood-burning cook stove in the kitchen and wood-burning heater in both the living and dining rooms. There was no heat upstairs so the kids didn't dawdle much in the winter mornings. They were up and down to the warm stove as quickly as possible. There were shades and lace curtains at the windows. The living room was furnished with a couch, center table with claw feet, a couple of rockers, some side chairs and a pump organ. The dining room had table and chairs and a shelf above the wood stove. Dad's bible was always on that shelf when he wasn't reading it. There was no sink in the kitchen as the well was outside on the back porch. There was a kitchen work table with two deep drawers where flour and sugar were kept. Water was heated in a cistern on the cook stove. The large pantry held most of the food, pots, pans and other utensils. There were two shelves over the kitchen table where other items were stored.

Mom and Dad slept in one of the downstairs bedrooms while the younger kids slept in the other one. The folks had a closet and highboy chest with five or six drawers. The girls slept in the larger upstairs bedroom. It had two double bed and a two drawer Princess dresser with mirror. We had no closet but then we didn't really need one since we didn't have any extra clothes. The boys had the other upstairs bedroom. It had one double bed and a small dresser. There was a straw tick in the attic where some of the hired hands slept.

We grew a large garden and with the fruit and our chickens, cows, hogs and timber supply, we were a self-sufficient family. The house was badly burned and had to be rebuilt. The old dining room became more like a family room of today. The kitchen was enlarged and a new dining room added. We added indoor plumbing at that time.

Dad was approximately 5'7", average build for his height, had blue eyes and auburn hair. He wore a full beard which was reddish before turning gray. He was a religious man, conducted family prayers and read to us from the bible every day after breakfast. He usually went to church in Salem and eventually became a Deacon or Trustee. Because there were so many little kids to worry about getting ready, Mom didn't often get to go to church with him. We kids went to Sunday school just down the road at the public school house. Dad completed the 8th grade and then took a business course at night school in Illinois. Both parents spoke and read German and we used to get a German language newspaper from Illinois. Other than that paper and the bible, there wasn't a lot to read at our house. But we kids read everything we could. I remember I would read myself to sleep by kerosene lamp light almost every night. Of course, I was usually so tired, I didn't last long before falling asleep.

I remember Dad telling stories about the Civil War. Apparently the Confederate General Morgan and his Raiders made skirmishes into their area of southern Illinois and would steal horses and other livestock. Whenever the word got out that Morgan's Raiders were in the area, Dad was instructed by his Dad to hire out with the horses in nearby timber and canyons. Dad also spoke of seeing President Abraham Lincoln's funeral train as it passed that part of the state enroute to Springfield.

Mother was about 5'6" and very overweight. She had gray eyes and black hair and suffered poor health for a long period of her life. While she was an excellent cook and baker, towards the end of her life, she wasn't able to do much as she couldn't stand to stay near the cook stove. She had an 8th grade education and she and Dad used to sing German songs to us. We never knew what the words meant but we learned them and sang along with them. Mother died suddenly of a heart attack.

I remember Mother telling a story about how her Mother and aunt came to America from Germany together on the boat. My grandmother's maiden name was Metz but I can't remember her given name.

I remember my Father telling me his parents were married at Württemberg, Germany. I believe this is Martin Luther's birthplace. His folks came to America shortly after they were married. This was the time of the Crimean War. Dad said many young German men were leaving the country to avoid possible conscription in case Germany got involved in that war.

Our main meal was usually at noon. We called it dinner. The evening meal was called supper. Our hired hands often ate with us and we enjoyed having someone new at the table to visit.

We went to Middle Grove School and walked the mile each way. It was a 1-teacher, 1-room school with grades 1-8. I never went beyond the 8th grade. Because of Mother's illness and since I was the oldest girl at home, I had to take over the family's cooking and housekeeping chores.

Father was a widower for six or seven years, eventually marrying Mary, the widow of his brother, Joseph. She brought her two daughters, Lillian and Theresa, and three sons, Eric, Louis and Ed from Jonesboro to join our family. Her oldest son, George, was married and remained in Illinois. None of us looked with favor on this union and never developed a feeling of warmth, rapport or friendship with our step-mother-aunt.

Mother taught me the scale and the chords on the organ when I was about 7. I remember I wasn't tall enough to sit on the stool and play so had to stand and play. Otherwise, I couldn't reach the pumps. I taught myself how to play, enjoyed practicing and eventually became good enough to be invited to play at school and church functions. We didn't have a lot of scheduled activities as children. I remember birthday parties and special occasions but we didn't go to dances or do other 'racy' thing like that. We always had a nice tree at Christmas and were remembered with gifts."

"Uncle Charlie and Aunt Mary--On Saturday night Dan often walked over to Uncle Charlie's house to play checkers with Cousin Elmer. As they sat at the kitchen table they could hear Uncle Charlie in the living room reading the Bible out loud while Aunt Mary dozed in her chair. Evers so often, when he read a particularly inspiring message, Uncle Charlie would jump up and dance around the room yelling 'hallelujas' to the four walls. Aunt Mary slept through it all. She grew steadily heavier as her body swelled with dropsy. She rarely moved from her chair but just sat and dozed most of the time.

The older girls did all the housework and cooking and cared for their little sisters of which Ruthie at seven was the youngest. In March of 1911, Aunt Mary died and was buried in nearby Howell Cemetery beside her little daughter, Gertrude Matilda, who had died in 1898 at the age of two. After the funeral at Uncle Charlie's house the oversized wooden coffin was loaded on a flatbed wagon for the drive to the cemetery. There was no road into Howell Cemetery so the wagon was driven through the muddy fields followed by neighbors and relatives in buggies, hacks and wagons." [Told to Joan Bartosz by Dan P. Scharf]

"Middle Grove Church-1915--The people of the community had long wanted a church of their own. Uncle Charlie and Dan's father, Frank Scharf were instrumental in organizing one, getting a plot of land, and soliciting donations of building materials and labor. Steve Hill deeded a corner of his farm directly across the road from the schoolhouse for the church.

It was just a plain little community meetinghouse with no steeple, no bell, and not even a cross on top but it soon boasted an active Sunday school and youth group. Every other Sunday an Evangelical preacher from Salem drove out to hold both morning and evening services, and usually stayed overnight with one of the families in the congregation, driving back to town on Monday morning." Lydia and Omer Bewley Wedding
Picture June 17, 1903

After their marriage, Lydia and Omer led a very nomadic life. Omer was an engineer/machinist and went wherever the current job was in progress. When the job was over they moved on to the next job. In later years he taught music and math at various locations including the Chemawa Indian School and on the Warm Springs Reservation. For the times, Omer was actually fairly well-to-do.

In 1933, tired of the constant moving and more than weary of Omer's nomadic life and his "womanizing", Lydia settled in Salem, Oregon while Omer stayed in Montana. The following year Omer filed for divorce in Montana claiming extreme cruelty.

"In The District Court of the Fourth Judicial District of the State of Montana, In and for the County of Missoula.

Omer Bewley, plaintiff

Lydia H. Bewley, defendant

No 11477 Decree

The trial of this case began December 18, 1934, and was then continued for the purpose of taking further testimony and a deposition was presented to the Court on June 8, 1935, and it appearing to the Court that defendant had appeared by demurrer and that said demurrer was overruled and that said defendant thereupon declined to plead further, and that her default for want of an answer or further appearance was duly entered.

The Court has heard the proofs of the facts alleged in plaintiff's complaint, from which it appears that the allegations of said complaint are true.

That plaintiff has been a resident of the State of Montana for more than one year last past, and that defendant has been guilty of extreme cruelty towards plaintiff for more than one year prior to the commencement of this action.

THEREFORE, IT IS ORDERED, ADJUDGED AND DECREED, And this does order, adjudge and decree that the bonds of matrimony heretofore existing between plaintiff and defendant be dissolved.

Done in open Court this 8th day of June 1935.

Asa L. Duncan, Judge"

1940: Salem, Marion County, OR, April 15, 1940; Lydia H. Bewley, 56, divorced, born IL (enumerated in Phillip J. Schiller household, no relationship, probably boarder or housekeeper)

Lydia went on to make a life for herself in Salem. She moved to a small house on 19th street where she spent her remaining years.

Lydia married Thomas L. Ross May 11, 1942 at the Englewood Church, Salem, Oregon. It is unknown for sure how they met but it most likely was at the Englewood Church where Lydia was a loyal member. They were married for ten years when Thomas died of a lingering illness.

Somewhere along the line Lydia decided to put her pen to paper and wrote a poem about her sisters. While very simplistic, it gives insight into the interests of her siblings.

Seven Sisters
by
Lydia Helen Bartruff

Ann is a radio fan,
She likes to keep house,
Work jig-saw puzzles
And cook good meals for her man.

Rose is our Santa Claus and banker,
No matter how hard we try,
About all we can do
Is to thank her.

A lovely garden you will spy
As you drive along the Mt. Hood highway,
In it you will probably see Margaret,
Picking flowers along the driveway.

In Portland there is a lovely family,
Ruled by a Queen,
Her children call her "Mother",
But we call her Josephine.

Lois is true blue,
She never leaves us in a lurch,
She not only loyal to us,
But to her Sunday School and Church.

Ruth, I hear, likes to read a good book,
And also to cook,
So when you go to see her,
You will find her reading
Or making toast in the breakfast nook.

Short, fat, at least not tall,
I am the oldest of them all.

The picture of Lydia to the right was taken at her son, Carl's, home in 1959 while she was there on a visit. She died a year later.

“Bartruff-Anderson—At the minister’s residence in Salem, Oregon, September 7, 1910, Mr. Daniel E. Bartruff and Miss Hilma Sophia Anderson, both of Salem, were united in marriage, Rev. P.S. Knight performing the ceremony. The home of the young couple will be Salem, R.F. D. #7” [Daily Capital Journal, September 8, 1910 p.8]

“PATHETIC ENDING OF ROMANCE--LITTLE HILMA ANDERSON, MARRIED WEDNESDAY TO DANIEL E. BARTRUFF, IS APPARENTLY ABANDONED BY HUSBAND, AND IS DYING IN THE HOSPITAL.-- Evidently having been deserted and abandoned by her youthful husband, and having failed In her efforts to locate her sweetheart, after a long night's search, Mrs. Daniel E. Bartruff, a pretty and petite girl of 17 years, and a bride of less than three short days, writhes in agony and hovers between life and death at the Salem hospital today, after trying to end her existence by the carbolic acid route, in this city last night. The police officials are endeavoring to locate the young husband, who seems to have disappeared almost completely, but their efforts to find him had not produced good fruit up to a late hour this afternoon.

Married Last Wednesday--The story of the poor and unfortunate young girl's life, which has been blasted in the earliest stages of her development, reads like a romance of the tales of the Arabian Knights., and is pathetic in the extreme. With her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Anderson, natives of Sweden, she came to Salem recently, and located upon a farm near this city. When or how she came to know young Bartruff, thei son of a prominent and prosperous farmer of near this city, could not be learned, but he has always been looked upon as an industrious and honorable young man by those who know him. At any rate tho young couple appeared at the county clerk's office on Wednesday off this week, and, with the written consent of the parents of the young girl, who was under the age required by law, secured a marriage license, and were married the same day by Rev. P. S. Knight, of this city.

Husband Is Missing--What happened after that is not known, as the young wife Is in such a condition of mind and physical misery that she cannot tell her story, and her relatives had not been apprised of her tragic act, and could not be seen this afternoon, but from the fact that the efforts of the officers to locate the young husband have been, fruitless as yet, and the conditions surrounding the case, lead to the belief that something has either happened to him or that he deserted the girl upon the evening of or the day following the marriage, and driven to desperation over her pitiful plight, she committed the rash act, which will doubtless end her earthly existence.

Could Not Find Husband's Folks--The parents of the girl live about five miles out of the city, where she has been staying. It appears that young Bartruff has a married slster living on High or Cottage streets, In this city, and the girl, after walking into town from her home, tried to find the home of her husband's slster, In the hope of finding her husband. She made inquiries at several places on High and Church streets last night, but, being unable to, find the place she sought, she took the deadly drug and would have died had she not been discovered writhing In agony in the yard of Clyde Johnson at Union and Church streets. It was at first thought the young woman was intoxicated, but it was later discovered that she had drunk carbolic add from a small vial which was found lying near where she rolled upon the grass. Dr. O. B. Miles was summoned, and rushed to her assistance

Little Hope of Recovery.-- She was immediately taken to the Salem hospital, where every effort was mode to relieve her sufferings, and save her life, and, although she is resting easier today, her mouth and throat are badly burned with the poison, and there are not many chances in favor of her recovery. From her condition, and that of her clothing, when found, Dr, Miles is of the opinion that she must have taken the drug over an hour prior to her belng dlscovered, and had been rollng about In mortal agony all of that tlme, and It Is a wonder that she is now alive. Tho maiden name of the unfortunate young glrl-wife, as registered upon the marriage license certificate was Hilma Sophia Anderson and those of her parents, who had signed the written consent to her marriage, and which had evidently been written by the girl herself, are Joseph and Sophia Anderson. It is understood that the girl's mother had been very ill for some time, and it is feared that the shock of the news of the daughter's sad fate may be more than the stricken mother will be able to stand." [The Daily Capital Journal, September 10, 1910 p1]

"Girl Bride Attempts Suicide—Mrs. Bartruff, Abandoned By Her Husband, Takes Carbolic Acid, And Is Found Semi-Consious By The Road Near Silverton--Silverton.Ore., Oct. 12. (Special to Capital Journal) Mrs. Bartruff, the girl brlde who was Miss Helen (sic) Anderson, and whose parents live near tho Swarts mill on the Silverton road, has again tried to make away with herself. A few days after her marriage, she tried to kill herself and was cared for at a Salem hospital. Tuesday when B. H. Davis started for Salem from Silverlon he found Mrs. Bartruff about two miles this side of Sllverton, semi-consious near the roadside, with a three-ounc e bottlo of carbolic acid, about one-third consumed, and a note from her husband saying he had deserted her. She was taken back to Sllverton and placed in charge of Dr. Brooks. He immediately went to work to pump the poison out of her. She had started to walk to her home, back towards Salem. When out near the Pudding river bridge she sat down by the roadside and drank tho acid and awaited death. Some little boys saw her sitting there and acting sick and gave the alarm and Dr. Brooks, of Sllverton, started for her relief but was met by Mr. Davis bringing her into the city, when she was attended to and then taken to the Salem hospital in an auto. She was able to sit up. For some time Mrs. Bartruff has been very despondent owing to her husband having deserted her. The poison burned her terribly but it is thought she may recover. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Anderson who live on the Sllverton road." [Daily Capital Journal, October 12, 1910 p. 8]

"Bartruff Loses Life in Stream--Dayton May, 53, Slips From Bank, Drowns--Daniel E. Bartruff, 53, Dayton, lost his life in the Yamhill river near his home Monday in what County Coroner Glen Macy termed an accidental drowning.

Mr. Bartruff's body was found in the river about 10 feet from a steep mud bank which bore skid marks of his shoes indicating that he had slipped into the stream, the coroner said.

Mr. Bartruff had been recuperating from a nervous breakdown which occurred some time ago but was said to have been almost completely recovered. He had been accustomed to take an early walk every morning but his family became alarmed when he failed to return as usual Monday.

He was born August 22, 1838 at Jonesboro, Ill., the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bartruff. In 1916 he married Laura Umphrey. Mr. Bartruff is survived by his wife and two daughters, Mrs. Cordelia Tompkins, Grand Island and Miss Winifred Bartruff, Dayton and one brother, Elmer Bartruff, Lacombe.

1946: Elmer and Lonie owned a dairy farm and were not able to get away for a vacation for years at a time. In June 1946 they took some time off to go fishing at Coos Bay where they both drowned in a boating accident.

Continue Search For Missing Lacomb Man

Coos Bay, June 29. A.P.—Search by coast guardsmen of waters of lower Coos bay was being continued today for the body of Elmer W. Bartruff of Lacomb, who was drowned yesterday morning in a mishap which also took the life of his wife.

Mr. and Mrs. Bartruff were members of a party of nine who crossed the bay from Empr about 4 a.m. in two rowboats to dig clams. Wind had arisen and the water was becoming rough when they started back across the bay a little before 7:30.

The boat in which the Bartruffs and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Peoples of Lacomb were riding became swamped. Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Peoples of Silverton, their twin sons and a nephew were in the second boat, a bit farther out in the bay, and turned back when they saw what had happened.

Ralph Peoples managed to pull Mrs. Frank Peoples out of the water, while Frank Peoples clung to the boat, which later drifted to shore. Bartruff was seen in the water but disappeared before he could be reached. The body of Mrs. Bartruff was recovered and taken to shore where her brother, Ralph Peoples, started artificial resuscitation while his sons went to the coast guard direction finder station to summon help.

Three coast guard boats joined in the search for Bartruff's body and brought a doctor to care for Mrs. Peoples, who was suffering from shock and exposure.

Elizabeth Ann Bartruff
 January 18, 1973 – December 25, 2010

SALEM - Beth's passion was sharing the Good News of Jesus' love to all. She was a faithful servant of her Lord even in her final hours. Her kind, selfless talk and actions, smiling face and thoughtfulness of others inspired and even transformed those around her. Even in the short time since her death several hundred people have testified via Facebook, email and in person.

Being diagnosed with Lupus at age 15 and living with its many complications and side effects did not deter Beth from her drive and zeal to serve her Lord. She always put others and her ministry before herself. She loved working with young people and was continuously active working with her church youth groups—and she was loved by everyone that knew her. Her conscientiousness and dedication were clearly demonstrated in her teaching career as well as in her frequent short term mission's trips.

Her goal was to help young people come to know Jesus as their savior and then live their life for Him to its fullest extent. She mentored and loved many youth at Salem Heights Church. Her vacations were usually mission trips to places such as Mexico, Spain, Honduras, and Arizona Navajo Indian Reservations.

Born in Salem, moving to Seaside until age 4; then to Tualatin where she attended Gaarde Christian Preschool; Tualatin and Bridgeport Elementary; Twality Junior High and Tigard High School. At Tigard High her leadership manifested itself in many ways such as Senior Class President, Yearbook Editor and Prom Queen. She continued her education at Willamette University earning a degree with a double major, Spanish and Psychology, and then a Masters Degree in Teaching. In 2009 she earned her Doctorate in Education from George Fox University.

Beth taught 6th grade at Mt. Angel Middle School for 5 years and then decided to use her experience and training to teach others to be teachers at Corban University where she was an Associate Professor.

Beth will be missed by her parents, Vic and Carolyn Bartruff, big brother, Victor, sister-in-law, Jeanah, plus aunts, uncles, cousins, friends, colleagues, students, neighbors and youth she mentored. Family and friends rejoice with her that she is pain free in heaven as of Christmas Day. Beth's beautiful smile brought much sunshine to all whose lives she touched.

Remembrances and donations in lieu of flowers can be made to the Beth Bartruff Scholarship Fund for education students at Corban University, 5000 Deer Park Drive SE, Salem, OR 97317-9392 or Lupus Foundation of America, 2000 L. Street, NW, Suite 710, Washington, DC 20036, or go to www.firstgiving.com/bartruff

1929: "After work closed up in Montana in the winter of 1929 I came back and went to work in the woods with Uncle Andy Bunch, aunt Margaret's husband. He was a woods boss. I was there about a week with snow about 8 feet deep. I was carrying pipe from one place to another, walking down a log with pipes on my shoulder. My feet slipped and I slid down that log on my butt for about 20 feet. I got up and I started for camp down the highline in mud about 10 inches deep. My feet couldn't keep up with the rest of me and I took a head dive in that mud, lost my dinner bucket and was mud from head to foot. When I got within hollerin' distance of camp I told my uncle to 'make out my check, I'll be there in a minute'. I went back to Montana." “LOCAL CHAT.--Two brothers, John and Henry BOYD, one leaving near Cobden, the other at Jonesboro, living practically in the same neighborhood have grown to manhood, and until Thursday of last week knew nothing of the existence of each other. They were taken from the poor farm when very small. Cobden parties taking the eldest one, now 26, who took the name SNYDER, and knew no better until a few weeks ago. He was told his real name, also that he had a brother. He came down last Thursday and found his brother, who makes his home with John BARTRUFF, south of town. BARTRUFF, ROBERT JAMES, (SS No.) Senior Group Supervisor. Born June 13, 1927 in Salem, Oregon. When Bob arrived at BATC Boeing did not have a definitive, formal contract but was working under Letter Contract Task Order Performance in support of the Saturn Program. Cost and pricing data for installation, maintenance and testing for such a complicated program were essentially non-existent. His indefatigable efforts permitted the successful negotiation of a contract. This ensured smooth administration of the Stage Contract effort in support of technical performance required for the program. (See BATC)

Scharf —60th

Bob and Alda Scharf of Perrydale celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary on Nov. 20, 2005 with a small gathering of family and friends at the family's century farm in the Perrydale area, near Ballston.

The event was hosted by grandson, Jason Scharf and wife, Anna.

Bob, born in Salem, grew up on a farm in Marion County and moved with his family to a farm near Perrydale in 1933. He has resided on the family farm ever since.

Alda was born and raised on her family's farm near Ballston. Her Miller family farm was originally established in 1884.

Other than spending two years in Washington, D.C. in government service and in Chicago during World War II, she has lived in the Polk County area since birth.

Robert Scharf and Alda Miller were married on Nov. 18, 1945 in Salem.

Their wedding attendants included Vada Boynton, Jeanette Christensen, Nellie Martini, Kenneth Swede Scharf, Clyde Smith and Clinton Smith.

Marie Norris (now Maxson) attended the guest book.

Over the years, the Scharf and Miller family farms became adjoined. The couple has lived and farmed in the Perrydale area for 60 years.

Bob retired from farming in 1984 and Alda continues being a homemaker.

Bob and Alda are members of the Amity Church of Christ and the Trail Duster Chapter of the Oregon Good Sam RV Club.

Bob collects and restores vintage John Deere tractors.

Alda enjoys crocheting and knitting afghans and is a member of the Perrydale Goodwill Club.

Wednesday to make her home. The Lorraine Needle Workers were the invited guests. The beautiful Foehr borne was artistically decorated in cut flowers which gave a sweet atmosphere to the occasion. At a late hour the charming hostess served a dainty lunch. In years of membership Mrs. Shomaker is one of the oldest members of the L. A. to B. L. F. & E., of which the Needle Workers is a social branch. During her years of membership she has served the society in almost every capacity filling the different stations faithfully and efficiently. As a token of appreciation for her many years of capable service for the call of union labor, the society presented her with a beautiful picture. The removal of this exquisite family from Murphysboro is a great loss to the community. They will be greatly missed in railroad circles as many of the railroad men have already moved their families to St. Louis because of working conditions of the M. & O. here. Those present were Mesdames Everett Welch, Philip Foehr, Al Picquard, Estelle Gersenslager, E. J. Banister, Clarence Blackwood, T. E. Christina Marie Bartruff

Generation IV

3. CHRISTINA MARIE/ BARTRUFF (Christian Konrad³, Johann Ludwig², Martin/ Bartruf) was born on 13 Aug 1828 in Winzerhausen, Württemberg, Germany. She died on 27 Feb 1892. She may have married JOHANNES METZGER.

Christina Marie Bartruff

28. Christina Marie, d. 27 Feb 1892, d/o Christian Conrad Bartruff, wine grape grower of this place and wife, Eva Louise nee Schaefer

b. 13 Aug (1828) 2:00, (christened) 17 Aug (1828), Pastor M. ?, (witnesses): 1. Friedrich Gross, citizen 2. Miss Louise 3. Juliann 4. Louise ?, wife of Jacob ?, Citizen 5.

Christina Marie is noted in the records as having three illegitimate children. In this area of Germany during this time period, males were required to be 25 years of age and females 22 years old, before they could marry. If an alliance was formed prior to that time, they couldn't marry unless they could obtain a Dispensation. These dispensations, when granted, often required a 'donation' so they tended to be only available to the more well to do. Until the parents married, the community often was obliged to provide for the child. The community accepted the children until the parents wed. At that point the parents would look after the child and the community was no longer in danger of having to provide for the child's needs.

This was in contrast to northern Germany where there were severe restrictions on the illegitimate child for his or her lifetime. There were restrictions on occupational choices and marriage opportunities in particular.

Johannes Metzger and Christina Marie Bartruff had the following children:

1. CHRISTINE ROSINE METZGER was born on 23 Nov 1851 in Winzerhausen, Württemberg, Germany.

Winzerhausen Church Records--Christening of Illegitimate birth
Christine Rosine (illegitimate) b. 23 Nov 1851, christened 16 Nov 1851, Father: Johannes Metzger and Christiane Marie, d/o Christian Konrad Bartruf, citizen and wine grape grower locally and wife Eva Schafer; (additional writing hard to decipher but appears to be) 06 Mar 1852 bestowed the family name

2. JOHANN GOTTLOB METZGER.:

Winzerhausen Church Records, Winzerhausen, Württemberg, Germany
Johan Gottlob, illegitimate; (s/o) Christiana Maria, daughter of Christian Konrad Bartruf, here, after the blessing/approval of the Overamt (a political/record control over a small geographic area) Johannes Metzger from Welzheim permitted the bestowal of his surname

3. WILHELMINE FREDERIKA METZGER

Note: In 1862 when Christina Marie Bartruf is listed on what is believed to be her immigration record she is shown with only one child, indicating that two of the children had either died or remained behind with family. At that time she was still enumerated as single.

Bartruff Reunions

1955-1970

The Bartruff-Scharf families held many picnics and reunions over the years but the only actual documentation for the “get-togethers” seems to be for the years 1955-1970. It was provided to me by Maxine Bartruff, who still possesses the original notebook of minutes and notes and was gracious enough to allow me to copy them. Her husband, David Bartruff, was extremely helpful to me until his death, providing information and photos.

Some of the reunion photos have captions with identifications of the participants. Others do not. Someone familiar with that time period may be able to reconstruct the identities by using the list of attendees in the minutes. I felt it was important to include the photos even though I did not have the individuals identified.

SPOUSE INDEX

While I realize that an index is invaluable, I felt that an index of the Bartruffs would be more confusing than helpful due to the common names used in the families. I have decided, instead, to provide an index of names for the spouses which may be helpful in locating a particular family.
