

The Poe Family

Down Through The Years

Compiled by Stephenie L. Flora

Preface

As a family researcher for over 30 years I have found that the excitement of finding that one missing piece of the "family puzzle" is one that is hard to explain to those who are not involved in their family history. I can only say that it starts out as a hobby and turns into an obsession at the blink of an eye.

The following information on the Poe family is my attempt to put together a picture of who these people were, where they came from, and how their lives evolved. I had compiled quite a few of the stories and statistical data in previous years but in 2013 I was given a box of photo albums/scrap books that added a whole additional layer to the information already compiled. The box was given to Chuck Tangen who knew of my interest in research and asked if I would be interested in looking through it. Another cousin, Lajea Flora Pruitt, brought the box back from Minnesota after a visit there and handed it off to me.

The box was a photo history of several generations of the Poe family compiled by Myra (Poe) Scofield. Her efforts to compile data on the Poe family were significant. She wrote letters to family members all over the United States asking for their information and compiling it in an album. The second album contained pictures from her direct line and was a continuous accounting of their lives as lived at that time.

Many of the photos in these albums were identified and just as many were not. By painstakingly comparing photos, clothing, time frames, etc etc I have been able to identify about 90% of the photos. With the others, I believe that they are from an associated family and with a little time I believe I can also identify many of them.

While the following manuscript is far from complete, I believe it is time to share what has been compiled to this point. There will be additional commentary and information added as time permits. I have started with the earliest known generation and moved forward in time. I have not provided information on current generations due to the problems associated with identity theft.

In doing this research, I must take this time to add that I have found no direct link to the well know poet, Edgar Allan Poe. If there is one, it is pretty obscure.

One final note regarding the Coat of Arms used; it is being used for decorative purposes only. Coats of Arms have sprung up all over the internet with the advent of people researching their family history. While this is the one being associated with the Poe family it would take extensive research to determine if they had a Coat of Arms and if this is, indeed, theirs. With that in mind, it does provide a nice decorative addition.

EDWARD POE was born about 1688 and died after 1704, probably in Ireland

Edward Poe had the following child:

1. PATRICK POE was born in 1704 in Ulster, Ireland. He died on 06 Feb 1759. He married ABIGAIL DAY on 28 Nov 1728 in Christ Church, Philadelphia, Bucks Co, PA, daughter of Christopher Day and Martha Unknown. She was born in 1708 in probably Ulster, Ireland. She died on 06 Feb 1759 in Plumstead, Bucks Co, Pennsylvania.

Ulster Ireland

"The Province of Ulster (Ulaidh)"

Ulster is the most northerly of the four historic provinces. It consists of counties Antrim, Armagh, Cavan, Derry, Donegal, Down, Fermanagh, Monaghan and Tyrone. Although the name is now often used as shorthand for Northern Ireland, three of its counties, Cavan, Donegal and Monaghan, are part of the Republic of Ireland.

In the earliest known division, the province covered a slightly different territory, excluding much of what is now Cavan and coming as far south as Louth. The capital was situated at Emhain Mhacha, outside Armagh. Attacks from its southern neighbour Mide (Meath) in the fourth century AD broke it up into smaller kingdoms: Tír Chonaill covering most of Donegal; Tír Eoghain covering most of modern Tyrone and Derry; Oriel which included Monaghan, Louth and Armagh; and Uladh which, although claiming the name of the province as a whole, in fact only incorporated the north-eastern counties.

The Normans managed to settle along the east coast from the twelfth century, but the power of the O'Neills and O'Donnells remained intact elsewhere in the province until the seventeenth century when the final collapse of the old Gaelic civilisation led to the Plantation of Ulster and a massive influx of settlers from Scotland and England.

The first great mass migration from Ireland to North America took place from Ulster in the eighteenth century and consisted of the descendants of the Scottish settlers seeking refuge from economic and political hardship and religious intolerance"

Let us begin by asking a simple question-who are the Scots-Irish? Simple questions very rarely have simple answers, and the answer to this one is more complex than most. Much depends, moreover, on where in the world it is posed. In Britain the term is virtually unknown, and most people would assume that it meant some kind of hybridization between the Irish and the Scots. Only the Protestant communities of Northern Ireland would generally recognize what is meant, though very few would now accept the designation for themselves, preferring to be described as British or Ulstermen. Only in North America, where the term was invented, would one be likely to encounter an immediate recognition; but even here there are problems. Many of the descendants of the original Scots-Irish settlers would happily wear kilts and tartan on commemorative days, though this would have been a shock to their ancestors, who took particular trouble to distance themselves from all things Celtic and Gaelic. The task of this article is to attempt what is always a dangerous endeavor: the separation of myth and reality, and thus uncover the roots of one of the most remarkable branches of the Scottish-and Irish-race.

The story begins with an ending. In March 1603, the same month that James VI of Scotland began James I of England and Ireland, the earls of Tyrone and Tyrconnell, chiefs of the O'Neills and the O'Donnells, the leading families of the ancient province of Ulster, surrender to the English. Thus concluded the Nine Years War, the latest in a long line of struggles to arrest the steady expansion of English power in Ireland. It was in Ulster that Celtic Ireland had made its last stand against a foreign invader, all the more unwelcome because he now came garbed in a cloak of militant Protestantism, a direct challenge to an ancient Catholic tradition. It had been a particularly bitter struggle, and Ulster had been devastated. The northeastern counties of Antrim and Down, within sight of the coast of Scotland, are described by contemporary writers as 'all waste'.

For James the conclusion of the Nine Years War came as a welcome addition to his new glories; it also presented him with a problem and an opportunity. As a man and a king he was no more sympathetic to Gaelic traditions and culture than his Tudor predecessors on the English throne. While still King of Scots he had been preoccupied with the problems posed by his own minorities in the Highlands and Islands, whom he once described as 'utterly barbarous.' In the 1590s he had even sponsored a scheme of internal colonization or plantation, handing over the island of Lewis to a party of Lowland adventurers. These men were to bring civilization and commerce to the western Isles, in a project that allowed for the wholesale extermination of the local Gaelic clans. Faced with the widespread hostility of the Highland communities, the Lewis plantation was a costly failure: the idea, however, remained fixed in the royal mind.

In Ulster, unlike the Scottish Highlands, the local people had been severely demoralized. Plantation was not a new idea in Ireland, but past schemes had achieved very little. To begin with James showed little interest in a fresh project but for a series of unusual opportunities. The first involved two rather shady Lowland opportunists, the kind of men all too attractive to the enterprising king. James Hamilton was a university don and a spy; and Sir Hugh Montgomery, his partner, was an Ayrshire laird. Together they helped Conn O'Neill, an Irish chieftain, escape from Carrickfergus Castle, where he had been imprisoned for rioting, and offered to obtain a royal pardon for him in return for a share of his substantial estates in Antrim and Down. James, originally hostile to the proposal, became the fourth partner in the enterprise, no doubt amused by the audacity of Hamilton and Montgomery. Both men proposed to bring over large parties of Scots Lowlanders to replenish the depopulated areas, thus reviving the hitherto discredited idea of plantation. James now had a way of driving a Lowland, Protestant and English-speaking wedge into the heart of a Gaelic and Catholic world. In granting Hamilton the territory of Upper Clondeboy and Great Ardes, James emphasized the intention "...of inhabiting the same, being now depopulated and wasted, with English and Scottish men; and the carrying of men, cattle, corn and all other commodities from England and Scotland into the said territories. Also, to have liberty to alien [grant] to any English or Scottish men, or of English and Scottish name and blood, and not to have the mere Irish."

Ireland was formally an English possession, so it was important to emphasize English as well as Scottish settlement, though for reasons of geography and temperament, the new plantation was almost exclusively Scottish, as James himself clearly recognized it would be: 'The Scots are a middle temper, between the English tender breeding and the Irish rude breeding and are a great deal more likely to adventure to plant Ulster than the English.'

Taking the lead of Montgomery and Hamilton, land hungry Scots crossed the North Channel in ever increasing numbers. What they found would have daunted all but the hardiest spirits: '...parishes were now more wasted than America (when the Spanish landed there)...for in all those three parishes [Glenabbey, Donaghadee and Newtonards] thirty cabins could not be found, nor any stone walls, but ruined roofless churches, and a few vaults at Grey Abbey, and a stump of an old castle in Newton, in each of which some gentlemen sheltered themselves at their first coming over.' But the land was good and largely unfarmed, as the native Irish economy had been pastoral rather than arable. Settlers were also encouraged by the promise of long leases, far better than the unfavorable terms in their native Scotland, where short leases acted as a disincentive to good husbandry and improvements. Plantation, the Scots were soon to show, could be made to work, especially when it was supported by adequate military force.

A second and more significant opportunity came in September 1607. Although Hugh O'Neil, Earl of Tyrone, and Hugh O'Donnell, Earl of Tyrconnel, had made their peace with the government some years before, they had been subject to almost continual harassment by the Dublin authorities. Fearing for their safety, the two chiefs left for the continent, never to return, an episode famous in Irish history as 'The Flight of the Earls.' James now had huge territories in central and western Ulster: Hamilton and Montgomery's free enterprise scheme was supplemented by the Plantation of Ulster. Land was granted to men known as 'undertakers', who pledged themselves to bring over settlers from England and Scotland; only the more inferior lands were to be allotted to the native Irish. This time more English settlers began to make an appearance, though they continued to be numerically weaker than their Scottish cousins. This is hardly surprising: England was richer and far more settled than Scotland, and Ireland remained a dangerous frontier. Native Irish chieftains, deeply resentful of their changing circumstances, took to the wilds as outlaws, and as 'woodkernes' represented a real threat to the more isolated settlers, many of whom were wiped out in midnight raids. The descendants of the Scots migrants were later to face a similar threat on the American frontier. While the Irish raiders were tough, the Scots were even tougher. Many of the early migrants came from the Scottish borders, men with names like Armstrong, Bell and Elliot, where they had been hardened in an age-old struggle with the English.

Despite the woodkerns-and the wolves-the Plantation survived and prospered. In 1634 Sir William Brereton, in a journey through Ayrshire noted that: 'Above the thousand persons have, within the last two years past, left the country wherein they lived...and are gone for Ireland. They have come by one hundred in company through the town, and three hundred have gone on hence together, shipped for Ireland at one tide...' By 1640 it is estimated that as many as 100,000 Scots had settled in Ulster compared with some 20,000 migrants from England.

As well as new modes of farming the Scots brought a strict Calvinist doctrine, which by the late 1630s was taking a firmly Presbyterian shape, as opposed to the episcopacy favored by the king. Later in the century an Anglican opponent of the puritans detailed the impact of Scottish Presbyterianism on Ulster:

"Hereupon followed the plantation of Ulster, first undertaken by the city of London, who fortified Coleraine and built Londonderry, and purchased many thousand acres of land in the parts adjoining. But it was carried on more vigorously, as most unfortunately withal, by some adventurers of the Scottish nation who poured themselves into this country as the richer soil; and, though they were sufficiently industrious in improving their own fortunes there, and setting up preaching in all churches where-so-ever they fixed, yet whether it happened for the better or the worse, the event hath showed. For they brought with them hither such a stock of Puritanism, such as contempt of bishops, such a neglect of the public liturgy, and other divine offices of this church, that there was nothing less to be found amongst them than the government and forms of worship established in the church of England."

Charles I, James son and successor, in attempting to force Scotland to accept the English forms of worship, took a path that led directly to the Civil Wars. This had a profound effect on the Protestant settlers in Ulster. Although the Scots had originally been made welcome by the English Lord Deputy in Dublin, their enthusiasm for Presbyterianism, made them politically suspect. Confronted by official hostility they faced an even greater threat in 1641 when the native Irish rose in revolt, venting years of frustration on the bewildered and badly frightened settlers.

The colony survived, though it entered a prolonged period of stagnation and crisis, which only really came to an end with the defeat of the Catholic Jacobites in the war of 1689-1691. During the wars the Ulster Scots had played a full part, assisting, amongst other things, in the famous siege of Londonderry. Among their rewards they could expect, at the very least, a measure of religious toleration: after all, the revolution settlement had at last conceded the right of Scotland to a Presbyterian church after years of Stewart persecution. But the Ulster Presbyterians were in caught in a paradox: though the reign of William of Orange brought a measure of calm, they were still subject to a religious establishment in Dublin, which remained strictly Anglican in outlook. During the reign of Queen Anne the Presbyterians, though part of the victorious Protestant party, were to find themselves just as outcast as their despised Catholic neighbors.

The successive wars had the effect of once again depopulating the fields of Ulster: many of the original settlers had been killed or had returned to Scotland for their own safety. An appeal was made for fresh settlers, with twenty-year farm leases being held out as bait. Thus began the last great wave of Scots migration to Ulster. In the decade up to 1700 an estimated 50,000 people made the crossing. Politically this last wave was among the most significant, especially for the future of America and the creation of that unique outlook that was in time to be known as Scots-Irish.

By 1707, the year that the Scottish parliament merged with its English cousin, the Protestant colony of Ulster was a hundred years old. The differences that had existed between the original settlers, whether Scots or English, had largely ceased to exist. It is now possible to discover a distinct Protestant Ulster identity, recognizably unique and distinct from the sources of origin. With the absence of outmoded feudalism, still present in Scotland, looser kinship ties, and a freer labor market the Ulster Protestants began to develop in an unanticipated direction. If anything religion provided the common bond, rather than race, uniting dissenters of differing faiths, though it is also true to say that the Scots settlers had acquired a cultural domination over their English counterparts. Though loyal to the crown, they were a people who, through decades of adversity, had become self-reliant, and never quite lost the feeling that they were surrounded by a hostile world: 'They learned from hard experience', one commentator noted 'that one must fight for what he has; that turning the other cheek does not guarantee property rights; in short, that might is right, at least in the matter of life and land ownership.' In the early years of the eighteenth century they found themselves once again under attack, though this time from a totally unexpected direction.

In 1704 the government of Queen Anne, dominated by the Anglican High Church party, passed an act that had a direct bearing on the Ulster Scots. All office holders were obliged to take communion in the Established Church, a measure which at a single stroke virtually wiped out much of the civil administration in the north of Ireland. It was even seriously suggested that Presbyterian ministers could be brought before Anglican church courts, charged with fornicating with their own wives. The worst features of the new legislation was removed by the Toleration Act of 1719, but the damage had been done, and full discrimination against the Presbyterians was not finally ended until the middle of the nineteenth century. The irony and unfairness of the new policy was pointed out, amongst others, by Daniel Defoe, the author of Robinson Crusoe:

‘It seems somewhat hard, and savors of the most scandalous ingratitude, that the very people who drank deepest of the popish fury, and were the most vigorous to show their zeal and their courage in opposing tyranny and popery, and on the foot of forwardness and valor the Church of Ireland recovered herself from her low condition, should now be requited with so injurious a treatment as to be linked with the very Papists they fought against... There will certainly be no encouragement to the Dissenters to join with their brethren the next time the Papists shall please to take arms and attempt their throats. Not but they may be fools enough as they always were to stand in the gap.’

The Ulster Presbyterians had endured-and survived-past waves of religious discrimination, and would most likely have continued to thrive in the face of official hostility. But in the early years of the new century they were faced with an additional challenge, one that threatened the whole basis of their economic existence in Ireland. By 1710 most of the farm leases granted to the settlers in the 1690s had expired; new leases were withheld until the tenants agreed to pay greatly increased rents, which many could simply not afford to do. Rather than submit to these new conditions whole communities, led by their ministers, began to take ship for the Americas: a new exodus was about to begin. In 1719, the year after the first great wave moved west, Archbishop William King wrote an account of the migration from Ulster, pinpointing the real source of the upheaval:

‘Some would insinuate that this in some measure is due to the uneasiness dissenters have in the matter of religion, but this is plainly a mistake; for dissenters were never more easy as to that matter than they had been since the Revolution [of 1688] and are at present; and yet never thought of leaving the kingdom, till oppressed by the excessive rents and other temporal hardships: nor do any dissenters leave us, but proportionally of all sorts, except Papists. The truth is this: after the Revolution, most of the kingdom was waste, and abandoned of people destroyed in the war: the landlords therefore were glad to get tenants at any rate, and let their lands at very easy rents; they invited abundance of people to come over here, especially from Scotland, and they lived here very happily ever since; but now their leases are expired, and they are obliged not only to give what they paid before the Revolution, but in most places double and in many places treble, so that it is impossible for people to live or subsist on their farms.’

As the years passed, thousands of people crossed the Atlantic from Ulster, just as their ancestors had crossed the North Channel from Scotland a century or more before. However, by 1750 the pace of migration began to slow, as relatively normal conditions returned to Ulster after years of economic dislocation. The period of calm was all too brief. In 1771 a fresh wave of migration began, once again induced by the greed of the landlords, which was arguably to have serious consequences for the security of the British Empire in North America. Faced with a fresh series of rent hikes, local people at first mounted some resistance, gathered together in an organization known as the Hearts of Steel; but the landlords had the law and the army on their side. In the short period left before the outbreak of the American Revolution a further 30,000 Ulstermen left for the colonies, joining some 200,000 who had already made their homes there earlier in the century. The contemporary image of the Ulster Protestant is most commonly that of the Orangeman, with all of his exaggerated loyalty to Britain and the Crown. For the dispossessed of the 1770s the opposite was true: they had lost everything, and came to America with an intense hostility towards all things British.

For the original Quaker and Puritan settlers of the thirteen colonies, largely English in origin, the emigrants of Ulster, an increasingly common sight, were usually described as 'Irish.' To counter this misconception the newcomers adopted the older description of 'Scots'. It was in this semantic exchange that a new breed took shape: they were the 'Scots-Irish.' For many years these people had lived on a frontier in Ireland, and it seemed natural for them to push on to a new frontier, where land was both plentiful and cheap, introducing a new urgency and dynamism into a rather complacent colonial society. Before long these 'backwoodsmen', distrustful of all authority and government, had established a hold on the western wilderness, fighting Indians and wolves in much the same way that they had once fought wolves and woodkern. In Pennsylvania the Scots-Irish established an almost complete domination of the outer reaches of the old Quaker colony. It was a dangerous life, but one which has established a lasting image in American history and folklore:

'He was a farmer so far as was needful and practicable out of the reach of all markets, though as often as not his corn was planted and his grass mown, with the long-barreled short-stocked ponderous small-bore rifle upon which his life so often hung, placed ready and loaded against a handy stump. What sheep he could protect from the bears and the wolves, together with a patch of flax, provided his family with covering and clothing. Swarthy as an Indian and almost as sinewy, with hair falling to his shoulders from beneath a coon-skin cap, a buck-skin hunting shirt tied at his waist, his nether man was encased in an Indian breach-clout, and his feet clad in deer-skin and moccasins.'

With the outbreak of the Revolution in 1775 the Scots-Irish, in interesting contrast to many of their Scottish cousins, were among the most determined adherents of the rebel cause. Their frontier skills were particularly useful in destroying Burgoyne's army in the Saratoga campaign; and George Washington was even moved to say that if the cause was lost everywhere else he would take a last stand among the Scots-Irish of his native Virginia. Serving in the British Army, Captain Johann Henricks, one of the much despised 'Hessians', wrote in frustration 'Call it not an American rebellion, it is nothing more than an Irish-Scotch Presbyterian Rebellion.' It was their toughness, virility and sense of divine mission that was to help give shape to a new nation, supplying it with such diverse heroes as Davy Crockett and Andrew Jackson. They were indeed God's frontiersmen, the real historical embodiment of the lost tribe of Israel."

Cannon Falls Man, 94 Recalls a 'Full Life'

CANNON FALLS — "Well son, I've had a pretty full life. Baseball, harness racing and barbering and some good times has given me a full and fruitful life, said Ed Wilson, Cannon Falls senior citizen.

Ed is considered a youngster by some of the people in Cannon Falls. Not because of his age but rather because of his agility and wit. Ed is "just a kid" at 94.

Baseball, sulky racing and barbering has taken most of his time since 1867 and he still recalls some of the outstanding events during his lifetime as though it were yesterday.

Racing on the circuit with trotters and pacers and traveling to St. Olaf's and Red Wing for a baseball game are still being relived by the kindly man.

Recalling the baseball of yesterday and comparing it to today's game, makes a person wonder how a player could survive. Gloves and protective equipment were not allowed back in the late 1800's.

The baseball was just as hard and the bats just as solid and a line drive felt as though it would tear the hand off. Those were just a few of the things sportsmen had to contend with during the growing stages of modern baseball.

Ed said the sulky racing was the big sport back in his heyday and that he would travel down to Kentucky just for a meet and then tour some of the surrounding states picking up money for the horse owner.

Equipment in sulky racing is different today than it was years ago. The race was run differently and the horses a bit slower.

Ed said, "Then we had to win three races or heats as they were called. With some ten horses in the race, it sometimes took all afternoon to win the three heats. We were tired when we finished."

Ed raced for a Col. Kittum, well known racing enthusiast in those days.

Starting in the barbering business at the age of 18, Ed decided

Ed Wilson, Oldest City Resident, Dies at Age 97

Ed Wilson, oldest Cannon Falls resident, died here Monday. He is pictured above as he celebrated his 96th birthday with a party and cake. Ed was a familiar figure around the city up until about 10 days ago, when illness sidelined him from his usual haunts. He was most often seen in Dabelow's barbershop, puffing on his usual cigar.

His mind was very keen, as he could remember back even as far as the 1880's, when he was a member of Cannon Falls' famous baseball team. He was a barber in Cannon Falls for many years until his retirement at the age of 84. His wife died in October of 1958.

Edward R. Wilson, 97, lifelong resident of Cannon Falls died Monday morning, Feb. 8, at the Cannon Falls Community hospital. He had been a patient there for ten days.

He was born in Cannon Falls Nov. 29, 1867, son of John and Susan Wilson. He was married to Edith Kowitz Sept. 6, 1893. They lived in Cannon Falls, where Mr. Wilson was a barber for many years.

Surviving are two sons, Clair and George, both of Cannon Falls; one sister, Mrs. Kate Lang of St. Paul; seven grandchildren; fourteen great-grandchildren and a number of nieces and nephews.

Funeral services were held Wednesday, Feb. 10, at 11 a.m. at the Church of the Redeemer (Episcopal), Cannon Falls, with Rev. Allen Cheales officiating. Mrs. Lowell Anderson was soloist, and Mrs. Roger Smith was organist. Pallbearers were Lloyd Johnson, Donald Ferguson, Earl Stedman, Dean Poe, Victor Johnson and Archie Dibble. The first 14 years of that near four decade figure were spent at the NSP building here in Cannon Falls where he worked in maintenance, and served under managers Hank Henderson and William Golden, Sr. The remaining years were spent as a hydro operator at the power dam on Lake Byllesby.

Retirement plans include residence in Cannon Falls where he and wife Sadie intend to be active in community affairs. They have two sons, Wilbur and Bob, and a daughter, Margaret.

Featherstone-Poe.

At Hillsboro, Oregon, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. H. Wilcox, uncle and aunt of the bride, on Wednesday, Dec. 11, at 2 p. m., a very pretty wedding was solemnized by Rev. E. P. Hughes, of the Congregational church.

Mr. Albert Featherstone, a successful young attorney of Wallace, Idaho, and Miss Grace Poe, one of the most accomplished and favorite young ladies of Hillsboro, were the high contracting parties.

The rooms were tastefully decorated with ivy, trailing vines, fern and white chrysanthemums. The large window in the parlor was very effective with a hanging basket of gracefully drooping ferns under vine-draped curtains. In the adjoining room, between windows, was a canopy of webbing, entwined with holly, arranged above a large mirror, framed with fern and white chrysanthemums.

Miss Ethel Morgan, of Portland, sang "O Promise Me." Miss Lamkin played the wedding march, and the bride and groom took their places beneath the canopy, where the marriage rite was impressively pronounced. The ring was an heirloom—her mother's wedding ring.

The bride was attired in white organdie, simple of design, but exquisitely beautiful, and carried a bouquet of white carnations, a gift from the groom. After congratulations, a few dainty refreshments were served. The dining-room was garlanded with myrtle. The tables were decorated with violets, smilax and chrysanthemums.

Those present were Rev. and Mrs. Hughes, Messrs. and Mesdames G. H. Wilcox, R. Crandall, J. C. Lamkin, Joseph Hare, Geo. Schulmerich, M. E. Everitt, Dr. and Mrs. Tamiesie; Misses Osmund, Sawyer, Wilcox, Morgan, Lamkin, Clark, and Laura Tamiesie; Messrs Wall, Wilcox and Lamkin.

The presents were numerous, useful and elegant. The bride's bouquet was caught by Miss Osmund.

Mr. and Mrs. Featherstone departed on the evening train for their future home at Wallace, where they will be at home to their friends after Jan. 1st.—Hillsboro, Oregon, Argus.

GOLDEN WEDDING IS CELEBRATED

Last Sunday morning Mr and Mrs. Milton H. Poe were surprised by a company of about thirty relatives who came to their home on Paradise Plain laden with baskets of food and prepared to spend the day.

The object of their visit at this time was to help Mr. and Mrs. Poe celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary.

Milton Poe of Cannon Falls and Miss Clara L. Roath of Castle Rock were married by Rev. John D. Batson, pastor of the Baptist church at Castle Rock, on May 28, 1879. They went to live at the farm in Oxford where they remained until 1911, when they came to Cannon Falls and bought the comfortable home in which they now live.

Mrs. Bertha Larter of Whitefish, Montana, had come to be present at this anniversary of her father and mother.

A bounteous dinner and supper was served to the guests and Mr. and Mrs. Poe were presented with a gift of money in gold. There were extemporaneous speeches, reminiscences and the general good time which can be had by a company of relatives.

Those present were Mrs. Emma Poe, Northfield; Mrs. Martha Maloney, St. Paul; Mrs. John Dickman and children, Fay and Zonia, of Randolph; Mr. and Mrs. O. O. Elstad, daughter Evangeline and granddaughter, Irene Elstad Dennison; Mr. and Mrs. C. Lang, Mr. and Mrs. Milton VanGuilder, children Elaine, Irene, Eva, Lila and Arthur; Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Wilson, Mrs. Claire Wilson and two sons Wilbur and Robert; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Poe, children Dean and Marjorie, Chas. Sherd and daughter Etta.

On Tuesday the real anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Poe's marriage, friends called during the day and evening, cards and gifts were received from California and cards from friends in many other states.

The Beacon extends their best wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Poe and hope they may have many more anniversaries.

MRS. CLARA L. POE

Funeral services for Mrs. Clara L. Poe, widow of the late Milton H. Poe, who passed away at her home Sunday evening, September 20, were held at the Lundberg mortuary Tuesday afternoon with Rev. L. W. Porter in charge.

Hymns sung at the service were selected by Mrs. Poe some time before her last illness. Mrs. R. L. Edstrom and Miss Gladys Wahlberg sang "Face to Face with Christ My Savior." "We Have an Anchor that Keeps My Soul," by Mrs. Edstrom at the mortuary and "Fade, Fade Each Earthly Joy" was sung at the grave by Mrs. Edstrom and Miss Wahlberg.

Interment was in the Cannon Falls cemetery beside the body of Mr. Poe, who preceded her in death three years ago, September 17, 1939.

The pallbearers were William Atchison, Reuben Edstrom, Wm. J. Robinson, Elmer Smith, Frank Tate and Chas. Van Guilder.

Clara L. Roath was born near Castle Rock in Waterford township, Dakota county, on January 11, 1860, where she lived until 1873 when she went with her parents to Red Wing for two years and then to Alexandria for four years.

On May 28, 1879, she and Milton H. Poe were united in marriage at Castle Rock by Rev. J. D. Batson, pastor of the Free-will Baptist church, and went at once to their farm in the Oxford neighborhood where they made their home until the fall of 1911, when failing health compelled Mr. Poe to take a rest. After spending a few months in the west, they returned to Cannon Falls and settled in their comfortable home in the west part of town where they spent their last years.

On August 20, 1882, Mrs. Poe united with the Oxford Methodist church, of which she was an active member for 29 years in the Sunday school, the Ladies Aid and WCTU. Later, finding she could not be of further service at Oxford, she transferred her membership to the Congregational church at Cannon Falls, of which she was a member when death claimed her.

Her daughter, Mrs. Bertha Larter and her husband, George H. Larter, of Whitefish, Montana; one sister, Mrs. Bernice Clark of Auburn, Washington; one brother, Elmer Roath of Pen-ticton, B. C., and a number of nephews and nieces survive her.

Besides those mentioned, their home on the farm was open house to Mr. Poe's nephews and nieces who, as children, were there almost continuously for the first 15 years of Mr. and Mrs. Poe's married life. They also gave a home to Mr. Poe's niece, Julia Poe Van Guilder, who at the age of 3½ years lost her own mother, but found a home for 23 years with her uncle and aunt. Their home was also open house to all the Methodist ministers and their families of the Oxford charge while they lived there.

MILTON H. POE

Milton H. Poe was born at Danville, Hendricks county, Indiana, December 29 1851, coming with his parents to Minnesota when six years of age and settling near Dundas. A few years later the family moved to the farm one mile east of Oxford, and this continued to be his home until 1911, when he removed to Cannon Falls where he has since resided, and where he passed away, after an illness of three years, on September 17. He was united in marriage May 29, 1879, to Miss Clara L. Roath at Castle Rock.

The last services were held on Wednesday from the Lundberg funeral home with Rev. Leland Porter of Minneapolis officiating. During the service Mrs. Reuben Edstrom sang "Blest Be the Tie that Binds" and Harry Dack of Stanton, accompanied by his mother, sang "Shall We Meet Beyond the River?" and "Face to Face." Gifted with a fine tenor voice, these songs were favorites with Mr. Poe and often sung by him during his life, and by a special request of his several years ago, were sung at the services. Mr. Dack also sang at the grave, "We Shall Meet Beyond the River, By and By."

Those who bore the casket were old neighbors and friends: Wm. J. Robinson, James Robinson, Elmer Smith, Reuben Edstrom, Fred Van Guilder and William Atchison.

Many floral offerings expressed the sympathy of friends and relatives.

He is survived by his wife and one daughter, Bertha, who resides at Whitefish, Montana; also a number of nieces and nephews.

Those from a distance who attended the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. Don Sherd, Mr. and Mrs. Burney Roath, Mrs. Edward Rohne and son Evan, Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Sherd and children, all of Minneapolis; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wallace of St. Paul.

Another Pioneer

I

Another old timer who later became a resident of Cannon Falls was Rev. Richard M. Poe, who was born in Bracken Co, Kentucky in 1807.

In 1843 he moved to Indiana. When the Mexican war broke out he enlisted in Co. I, first Indiana infantry and received the commission of second lieutenant. At the close of the war he returned to Indiana until he emigrated to Minnesota in 1858.

In 1830 he was married to Margaret Kemmer who died in 1869.

They were the parents of twelve children, all coming to Minn with the father.

For two years he lived in what was then known as the "Big Woods" South of Dundas in the vicinity of Lake where he sold the farm to his youngest son Milton and bought the home of another son, Leonidas, in Cannon Falls.

In the fall of 1860 he settled on 160 acres of school land in the Southeast corner of Stanton township where he lived until the spring of 1879.

In 1874 he married Mrs. Abigail Haight of Spring Creek in Goodhue Co.

For several years Mr. Poe acted in the capacity of local preacher, he having been a life long member of the Methodist church

II

For a long period he performed the duties of mail messenger between the post office and depot, in winter time hauling the mail sacks on a small homemade sled, refusing the gift of a good "store sled".

Both Mr. Poe and wife passed away within two days of each other in 1892. None of the children are living, but there are four grand children living in Canon Falls. They are Richard M. Poe, E. R. Wilson, Mrs O. N. Lang, and Mrs John Dickman. Three live in Montana and one in Idaho.

I am not a typist, but hope my writing will not be too hard to read. I have condensed the story as much as possible

Joyce Elstad Wins First Place in Regional Contest

A 16-year-old Cannon Falls girl, Joyce Elstad, won first place in the regional Search for Talent contest which is being sponsored by the Women's Institute of St. Paul and was named regional representative of Region 7. The contest was held at Rochester last Saturday.

In this search for talent, Minnesota and Wisconsin have been divided into 8 regions and a representative from each of these will take part in the final contest to be held in the St. Paul auditorium on April 24 and 25. The winner will be awarded a $500 scholarship or $500 in cash. Age of contestants must be between 16 and 22 years.

At Rochester, Joyce was one of 16 contestants. Each contestant sang two songs, one from a selected list, the other of the contestant's own choice. From the selected list, Joyce chose Mozart's Alleluja and her own choice was "One Fine Day" from Madam Butterfly by Puccini. She was accompanied by Romaine Johnston.

The runner-up in the regional contest was Miss Lila Strickman.

Joyce has an exceptionally fine voice and the Beacon wishes her success in the coming contest.

Joyce Elstad Wins Favorable Comment

While Joyce Elstad did not win the coveted title of Miss Minnesota at the Miss Minnesota contest at Excelsior Sunday, she did win very favorable comment.

In speaking of the contest, Virginia Safford in her column in Tuesday's Minneapolis Star said, "The talent displayed this year was of the highest average. At least five of the contestants had voices that — if properly developed — might reach operatic standards. Take Joyce Elstad, the little Cannon Falls school teacher who doubles as a cafe waitress. She opened her mouth and out came in beautiful style an aria from 'Mignon'."

Joyce Elstad Is Bride Of Merlyn Waslie

St. Ansgar's Lutheran church, Saturday evening, was the scene of the marriage of Joyce June Elstad, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fulton Elstad of Faribault, and Merlyn Orville Waslie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Einar Waslie of Cannon Falls.

The Rev. Birger Nelson read the double ring service at seven thirty o'clock. Mrs. Wilbur Scofield played the nuptial music and James Gergen of St. Paul sang "Because" before the ceremony and during the exchanging of vows, "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ice blue satin fashioned with a net bodice and a long train. Her finger-tip veil was held in place by a beaded crown and she carried a bouquet of red carnations.

Hazel Waslie, the bridegroom's sister, was maid of honor and Beverly Waslie, another sister, was bridesmaid. They wore gowns of green and orchid satin, respectively, and carried bouquets of chrysanthemums and daffodils. The flower girl, Diane Wedin, wore an orchid organdy dress and carried a colonial bouquet of mixed flowers.

Serving as best man was Maynard Schiller of Farmington and Donald Thompson, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, was groomsman. The ushers were Eldridge Flom of Dennison and Gerald Fremouw of Cannon Falls.

Following the ceremony, a reception was given in the church parlors by Mr. and Mrs. Ed Bergstedt for eighty guests.

For going away, the bride wore a gray suit with blue accessories.

Mrs. Waslie is attending MacPhail School of Music in Minneapolis and Mr. Waslie, the Minneapolis Business College. He is also employed at the Armour plant.

Mr. Waslie served for two years in the service as Seaman 1st class, in the Philippines and Guam. Mrs. Waslie has taught in the rural schools in the county for the past two years. They will make their home at 901 Fourteenth Avenue South, Minneapolis.

Mrs. Bascom was born at Oxford, November 1st 1876, and lived nearly all her life in this vicinity. At the age of 21, her health failing, she went to Colorado in the fall of 1897 hoping that a change of climate would benefit her. Bascom of Sterling, Colorado. She was a sincere christian and united with the Methodist E. church in Sterling, Col., and was ever an active member of the church. She with her husband returned to her home at Oxford some 5 months ago, where she obtained the best of care of a mother, brothers and sisters and the faithful and constant husband who remained by her bedside to the last. The funeral was conducted by Rev. G. S. Perry from her late home. Many loving friends followed the remains to the grave. The following named young ladies acted as pall bearers: Jennie Season, May Season, Edna Bort, Myrtie Lewis, Mary Mc Kinley, Blanch Sumner. The following poem was composed by the mother of her husband, Mrs. K. H. Bascom.

There's a light in the window for thee daughter,
It is shedding its rays most resplendantly clear,
Jesus the Savior is holding the taper,
That sheds it's bright beams on you, my dear.
Keep up thy spirits and courage dear daughter,
Bouy up thy hopes in trust and good cheer,
Sink not nor weary, nor faint nor falter,
God's ministering angels are ever thee near.
They are strewing thy pathway with flowers daughter.
Striving to illumine and brighten thy way,
To reveal to thee the glory that is waiting thee hither.
In the Beautiful Realm of never ending day.

MARJORIE POE STANLEY MATTIX WED

Miss Marjorie Gael Poe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Poe of Cannon Falls, and Mr. Stanley Vincent Mattix of St. Cloud, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Mattix of Mahnomen, Minn., were united in marriage Thursday evening, July 4th, at 8 o'clock at Barnes Memorial Congregational church. Rev. Carl Mahle of Sleepy Eye performed the ceremony and Rev. Dwight Jackson, pastor of the church, gave the prayer.

The ceremony was performed before a background of large baskets of green and white and with delphinium and white daisies.

The bride, who came in on the arm of her father, was attired in a white sheer, street-length dress and carried a shower bouquet of pink roses.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Morris Poe of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, wore pale pink and the maid of honor, Mrs. Dean Poe, had chosen a rose shade. Patricia Mattix, the groom's sister, and Bette Ruth Poe, the bride's niece, as junior bridesmaids wore dresses of a medium shade of pink. The bride and her attendants all wore flowers in their hair.

The groom was attended by his father as best man. The bride's brothers, Morris and Dean Poe, were the ushers and Charles Van Guilder Jr. of Cannon Falls and St. Cloud assisted in seating of the guests.

Before the ceremony, Mrs. Harold Howland of Minneapolis played a program of soft music on the organ and Dean Poe sang "Because." As a prelude to the ceremony Mrs. Carl Mahle sang the beautiful nuptial hymn "O Perfect Love," and the processional was the traditional bridal music from the opera Lohengrin by Wagner.

The single ring ceremony was used. For his bride, the groom had had a ring made from gold he had purchased in New Guinea while he was in the service.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the Episcopal Guild Hall for about 75 guests. In the receiving line were the bride and groom and their parents. The bride's mother wore a light blue dressmaker type dress of plain material and the groom's mother had chosen an aqua dress of much the same style. Both wore corsages of roses and carnations. Mrs. Ray Black and Mrs. Russell Bremer assisted in receiving the guests. The serving table was centered with a beautiful bouquet of snap dragons and gypsophila. A four-tiered rectangular wedding cake, topped with a bell, was cut by the bride and groom. Miss Marjorie Johann of St. Paul poured.

The bride is a graduate of the Cannon Falls high school and received her degree at the Mankato Teacher's College. She has taught school in Mankato and Fargo, N. Dak. At present she is the psychometrist at the veterans' counseling center at St. Cloud. The groom is a graduate of the Mohnomen high school and attended the North Dakota School of Science in Wahpeton, N. Dak. He saw service as a staff sergeant in the Engineering Corps in the South Pacific.

Mr. and Mrs. Mattix will be in St. Cloud and Sauk Rapids for the remainder of the summer.

"Clinton J. Poe is the druggist of Medicine Lake and one of the founders of the town. He came into the locality in March, 1910, first identifying himself with the old town of Medicine Lake and with the Lake Drug Company, and has the distinction of being the pioneer druggist of this region. The Lake Drug Company comprised Mr. Poe and A. W. Huxsol, the latter now of Wolf Point, Montana, and when the firm moved to the new town of Medicine Lake it occupied the lot upon which Mr. Poe's business house now stands and was one of the first business firms established in the town. The first building which the firm occupied was a mere shack, 20 by 24 feet in dimensions, and it now forms a part of the present business house of the Poe Drug Store.

Mr. Poe was born at Cannon Falls, Minnesota, June 23, 1884, a son of Jonathan S. Poe and a grandson of the Rev. Richard Poe. The Rev. Richard Poe, an early circuit rider of the Methodist faith, rode over Goodhue County, Minnesota, and preached to the pioneers until age retired him. He died at the age of ninety-two years and lies buried at Cannon Falls. It was in 1856 that he brought his family into Minnesota and his home was on a farm near Cannon Falls. The Rev. Poe was a veteran of both the Mexican and Civil wars, and held the rank of first lieutenant in the war with Mexico. His family comprised twelve children, and of his numerous sons William, Baker, Alonzo and Jonathan S. were Union soldiers.

Jonathan S. Poe, a native of Danville, Kentucky, removed to Minnesota before the Civil war, in which he enlisted for service against the Confederacy as a member of Company 1, Thirteenth Minnesota. Infantry. He enlisted almost at the beginning of the struggle, and was wounded in the battle of Mill Spring Kentucky, which incapacitated him for further service, and he afterward drew a pension. His life was spent as a farmer.

Jonathan S. Poe was married in Minnesota to Emma Babcock, who was born at Port Huron, Michigan, a daughter of Dow Babcock. They became the parents of the following children: Mrs. Ivie D. Simpson, of Redwood Falls, Minnesota; Mrs. E. E. Orr, of Wadena, Minnesota; Mrs. O. E. Elstad, of Dennison, Minnesota; Mrs. Lewis Bascom who died at Cannon Falls, Minnesota; Richard M., of Cannon Falls; and Clinton J., the youngest of the children. Jonathan S. Poe early became a republican voter, but afterward turned his political influence for temperance and was one of the first to join the prohibition party and took an active part in the work which led finally to nationwide prohibition.

Clinton J. Poe was born at Cannon Falls, Minnesota, June 23, 1884. His boyhood environment was the farm, and he continued as a farmer until the age of twenty-one, in the meantime receiving a district school education. He later attended the Cannon Falls High School and graduated therefrom. He then began learning the jewelry trade and also working in the drug store of Schofield Brothers of Cannon Falls, remaining with that firm until removing to North Dakota and spending a year at Glenbury. From there he came to Culbertson, Montana where he spent three years in the jewelry business. From Culbertson Mr. Poe came to Medicine Lake in 1910, and the Poe drug business occupies this Medicine Lake field alone. Mr. Poe became a registered pharmacist by practical experience.

As a citizen of Medicine Lake he entered wholeheartedly into the life and growth of the town, was instrumental in its incorporation and was elected the town's first mayor, holding that office for two terms. He was one of the leaders in the effort to make Medicine Lake the county seat of Sheridan County, and supported the movement which brought Sheridan County into existence. He became a stockholder in the Farmers Elevator at the time it was organized, and also purchased a small lot of stock in the Farmers Telephone Company when it was organized.

The Poe home in Medicine Lake, erected by its present owner, is a five-room cottage, modern in its appointments, commodious and comfortable. Mr. Poe was married in Bainville Montana, October 22, 1910, to Miss Marie Bielen, who was born in St. Paul, Minnesota, August 15, 1887, a daughter of Peter and Sophie (Friedman) Bielan, the father a native of Germany and the mother of Minnesota. Mr. and Mrs. Bielen came from St. Paul, Minnesota, to Montana in 1907 and opened the St. Paul Hotel in Culbertson. Three children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Poe: Dorothy, Helen and John.

When Mr. Poe became a voter he espoused the cause of the republican party and cast his first presidential ballot for Mr. Taft in 1908 but since has twice supported Mr. Wilson. Fraternally he is connected with the Masonic Order, a member of Trowel Lodge No. 67, of Culbertson, Montana. During the World war he was actively identified with the committees carrying forward the work of raising funds to support the soldiers at the front and at home, actively helping in all the Liberty Loan drives and in the work of the local Red Cross." Della, at some point, moved to Montana where she was employed as a teacher. Since some of her Poe aunts and uncles were living there at that time it is assumed that she may have stayed with one of the families. It was here that she met and married Beryl E. Flora on April 9, 1917 at Homestead, Otter Tail County, Montana. The plan was to marry in secret but as the story below illustrates, their plan did not succeed.

"Beryl E. Flora Wedding--

The wedding was in Homestead, Montana. In those days Pastors came to town every six months, taking care of weddings, baptisms, funerals and speaking the word of the Lord. The meetings were held in tents. Beryl talked the pastor into staying over a day so he and Della could get married. It was to be a secret, but a blabby pastor told and Beryl's mother made cookies and told everybody in town. Beryl picked up Della in his horse and buggy. When they entered, the wedding march was played. After the vows, Beryl's mother served coffee and cookies. Della's family were not there as they lived in Wadena, Minn. Della had gone to Homestead to teach school.

They left Montana and started to farm south of New York Mills, Minn. I was born in Wadena and Lyle was born on the south New York Mills farm. We left the farm and dad had a grocery store in Verndale, Minnesota. Lelyn was born in Verndale. It was there that my sewing abilities showed up. Mother came into the house and found that I had taken one of her good sheets and cut out a doll's dress.

We left Verndale to go to California in an old Overland car that had izzing glass windows. We lived in Pasadina part time in a tent. The trip out there was on gravel trails used more or less by wagons. They had one lane with turn outs for when one met another car. We returned to the Wadena farm then to the farm north of New York Mills. This was the Tiffany farm. Here Laird was born. We kids did most of our growing up here. There were more fun times.

Our dad was a farmer. It was hard work and depression times but determination brought us through. We had a beautiful herd of registered Guernsey cows. We had a Welsh pony that was brown and white. We called her Queen and she was. I thought we kids were the richest kids in the country. There was a lot of hard work with both parents working in the fields; Dad with four horses and Mom dricing the tractor. We watered the cows a distance from the house by dipping the water up by the bucket full with an iron pot and filled with rocks and a pail on the other end with a pole in the middle.

Mother washed clothes with a washboard. Then came the machine where one put a foot on one lever and pulled with a hand on another lever. It was not fun. Later dad brought a machine home that had a pulley on it that went to an engine that hated to start and the tub leaked.

We took many trips. Later dad made the first house on a truck bed and we had the first motor home. It was not fancy but it served the purpose. It was fun times. We were lucky kids because our parents worked hard and made us good citizens. They taught us love and we learned about God. We had no fear of life. Thank you for giving me these parents." written by Lorraine Flora Tangen

The Bridal Prayer

They stand alone the newly wed
With chastened voice and reverent head!
One flesh the twain and one prayer
Ascending from the altar there.

Tender and broken is each word
Upon the sacred stillness heard:
Winged with one faith to reach the throne
And bring a fathers blessing down

Oh! sweetest hour for human pair,
When love is sanctified by prayer,
And when, in answer from the skies,
God sends again earths Paradise

FIRE ORCHESTRA SIGNS

Portland Organization to Make
Tour of Orpheum Circuit.

The Portland fire bureau's orchestra has been signed to make a Pacific coast tour of the Orpheum circuit. The signing of the band is considered by Harold J. Murphy, manager of the Orpheum theater, to be one of the best publicity tours that the city of Portland could make, as well as an excellent opportunity for the Orpheum circuit to present the firemen's band, which won such fame during the fire chief's convention last summer.

No change will be made in the name of the band and each one of the members will appear in regulation uniform. Captain Alex Holden, conductor of the orchestra, has also won renown as an instructor in fire prevention. A special publicity campaign will be carried on in each city by the Orpheum circuit to impress upon the public the name of Portland and the Portland firemen's band.

Personnel of the organization is Alex Holden, fire marshal's office, manager and director; Walter Knowlton, Hal Painter and William Jacobs, saxophones; Hymie Beslow, violin and banjo; Roy Adams, piano; Max Beslow and Charles Maw, trumpets; Everett Kingsley, trombone; Mark Ross, bass; Russell Devaney, drums, and Victor Brown, singer and entertainer.

DEATH ENDS HUBERT ORR'S SUFFERINGS

Sturdy Young Son of Mr. and Mrs.
E. E. Orr Succumbs to Typhoid

One of our very promising young men has been called to higher service. After a five weeks' illness with typhoid, earth released him, and heaven claimed him. The sympathies of the entire community go out to this home which has been signally tried by illness, and now deprived of the eldest son.

Hubert was a happy boy, even as a little chap going to school, the boys dubbed him "Happy," and the appropriateness of the name stayed by him. There is a basis for this. His good nature and sunny disposition, apparent to all, were the reasons.

He was a very patient sufferer through the thirty-six days in bed, and as long as he was conscious, he was thoughtful, and uncomplaining. He was a member of the Methodist church, and took the course in training under a former pastor, J. C. Craig, who bears high testimony to his worth. He was a faithful attendant during that part of the year, when he was in his home town.

His closing hours were particularly happy. He spoke often of the land to which he was going, sang hymns of faith and expectation, and said he was ready to go.

Born June 29, 1901, he had reached the age of eighteen, and was in his Senior year at the high school. But God's graduations are not based on diplomas issued here, he has entered the school of highest culture, under the tuition of the Great Teacher.

He died on Tuesday morning with the entire members of the family about him.

The funeral took place from the Methodist church this afternoon at two o'clock. The choir sang three of his favorite hymns, and the pastor made reference to the life of exceptional promise of usefulness, thus suddenly cut short before it came to perfection.

The interment took place at the city cemetery.

Floral tributes in abundance testified of the many friends and the high estimation in which he was held in this community.

That bird like voice whose "Happy" tones

Made glad these scenes of sin and strife,

Sings now an everlasting song,

Amid the trees of life.

God saw a smile for earth too bright
A heart too clean for taint of vice,
He bore him to that world of light
To dwell in paradise.
